

OBSERVATIONS

FROM THE SIDELINES
BY Kathryn Hall Bogle

THE ZODIAC PROJECT of Bethel A.M.E. Church produces a line of several fund-raising events during the year through the master mind of Minnie Scott, director of the project. With frequency, Scott chooses Cora Smith as program chair. Their latest collaboration was a presentation of, "A Hair and Fashion Show," staged at Matt Dishman Community Center last Sunday. The show, featuring hair styles and black and white garments of another fashion era—the thirties and forties—drew nearly 300 women during the afternoon.

Scott wore a black and white polka dot silk in blouson style from her own collection of favorite gowns. The versatile Cora Smith wore a new dress of her own design—a black sheath adorned with very wide white ruffling cascading in ruffles from shoulder to the tiny waist.

Scott is already planning the next event, a Zodiac tea under the sign of Leo.

parish family of the Church of St. Philip the Deacon two days following the ordination of the Rev. Alcena E. Boozer to the priesthood of the Episcopal Church. Feasting was at the invitation of Delores Caldwell Leggroan, sister of the Rev. Boozer. Other members of the large Caldwell family and several of their friends in the church assisted the hostess. Guests were invited to the home of Dr. Samuel Brown to dine picnic style under lawn umbrellas and on the large sundeck.

To serve the crowd, there were trays of fried chicken, a whole baked salmon and a variety of vegetables and salads. The piece de resistance, however, were the two whole succulent 50-lb. lambs, turned, browned and roasted on the spit by William "Dutch" Daut, a wine distributor of Vancouver, Washington and Tom Mesher, amateur chefs and Caldwell family friends. The two men were besieged by requests for "more", the recipe, and requests to "do it again soon."
