

Mumford & Williams Park/Why Not

"I could think of no better memorial than Ira Mumford Park," said Elaine Harrison at the hearing to rename Alberta Park. More than a dozen people testified at the hearing at Matt Dishman Center Thursday before Parks Superintendent Cleve Williams. Williams will make a recommendation to City Commissioner Mike Lindberg on changing the name of the park. Ac-

ording to the book "Portland Names and Neighborhoods", Portlanders in 1882 probably chose Alberta, the youngest child of Queen Victoria in naming the park. "If we are still so fascinated with history, I think Alberta Street would be sufficient," said Harrison.

Look into the facts about Measure 14, and find out why...

... people all over Oregon are concerned about '14'—the proposal to shut down the Trojan electric plant.

Because Measure 14 simply makes no sense.

Shutting down Trojan, an operating nuclear power plant which has reliably and economically produced about as much electricity as Bonneville Dam for more than ten years, would provide no real benefits to Oregonians and would lead to no greater environmental and economic consequences. A shutdown of Trojan is drastic and unnecessary. It simply makes no sense.

"We studied this issue from a scientific standpoint. Measure 14 would be of no benefit to the people of our state. Shutting down a proven operating electric plant is a drastic approach that makes no sense. As a scientist and as a citizen of Oregon, I'm voting NO on Measure 14, and I urge you to vote NO too."

Dr. Mary Fisher, Chair
 Department of Physics
 Pacific University

Because of the impact on Oregon's environment.

Even using conservation, cogeneration and renewable resources, new coal plants would be the backbone of any program to replace Trojan's electricity. And we would face the potential need to dam many of Oregon's remaining free-flowing rivers and streams in order to build new hydroelectric plants. As a result, Oregon's environment would suffer significantly.

"As an Oregonian with a deep commitment to our state's environment, I strongly oppose Measure 14. This will replace the electric supply which comes from Trojan? Two things are more likely—more dams and more coal use. Measure 14 will be a cost per the environment. Please vote NO."

Philip W. Schneider
 Board Member
 National Wildlife Federation

Because of the impact on consumers' electric bills.

Shutting down Trojan would increase Oregonians' electric bills because electricity from Trojan is far less expensive ($2.66 per kilowatt hour) than electricity that would have to be used to replace Trojan's electricity. There is no surplus of reliable electricity at Trojan's predictable low cost.

"Measure 14 would close one of our cheapest sources of electricity. It is estimated that the cost of replacing Trojan's power would be over a billion dollars. We're the ones who will pay every month in our utility bills. Higher utility rates caused by shutting down Trojan will hurt everyone—including those living on fixed incomes. Before you vote, please think about the price tag for all Oregonians, especially those least able to pay."

Joan Young
 Mayor of King City and Senior Advisor

Because of the impact on Oregon's economy.

Shutting down Trojan means the immediate loss of hundreds of jobs, and the state-wide economic impact of the Trojan shutdown would place thousands of more jobs at risk. Closing Trojan at the cost of jobs and higher electric bills would unnecessarily hurt Oregon's economy.

"We've all worked hard the last few years to rebuild Oregon's economy because we all have a stake in Oregon's economy and its future. Measure 14 isn't a game. If this drastic measure passes, we'll all pay the price. Measure 14 is a step too far and that none of us can afford to take."

Dr. James F. Brinnworth, Dean
 College of Business Administration
 University of Oregon
