

PGE FORMED COMMUNITY RELATIONS GROUP

As part of an internal reorganization designed to provide better contact with the communities it serves, Portland General Electric Co. has formed a new community relations group.

"We believe PGE is already viewed as a good corporate citizen and our employees have done a good job maintaining contact with local government, civic, business, political, and social service agencies," says Chuck McClellan, General Manager, Community Relations. "This new group will enhance our previous effort by devoting more time to these important segments of our communities."
