ANC Speaker In Portland

By Angelyn M. Irving

"Liberation will come sooner or later," with continued effort and support. Susan Mnumzana, African National Congress, spoke at Mt. Olivet Baptist Church, Thursday, October 30. She presented several topics specifically related to the plight of Black South Africans in their struggle for freedom.

"The African National Congress (ANC)", she said, "was formed to unite colored people across the country." When asked if the ANC had a model to follow when the apartheid government is forced out, Mnumzana's response was that the ANC does have a blueprint that includes the guaranteed rights for all men and women and the redistribution of the land.

Mnumzana praised Margaret Carter as a champion representative and supporter of women. She stated that the Black South African woman suffers in many ways. Among them: her legal rights to be treated as an adult are denied—by law, Black women are perpetual minors. They can do nothing without permission from their men. Black women receive no medical services as such. Involuntary sterilization is widespread among Black South African women while white women are encouraged to procreate.

On the issue of divestment, Mnumzana said that companies do not make changes because they want to. "The recent pullouts are not seen as adequately responding to the pleas for divestment. These companies will continue to receive profits from the manufacture and sale of their products. They will also continue to provide technology."

Mnumzana encouraged continued efforts to: 1. urge companies to completely pull out of South Africa and 2. urge the government to institute full sanctions. South Africa is not self-sufficient and would be hurt if sanctions were strictly enforced.

The first nation to receive foreign aid from the United States was Venezuela. The money was appropriated in 1812 to help victims of an earthquake.

The word "volume" comes from the Latin word volvere meaning "to roll" because anciently, books were written on sheets rolled on a pin or roller.

A single ounce of platinum could be drawn out into a wire, finer than a spider's thread, that would reach from New York City to New Orleans.
