

Capitol Boxing Presents Fight Night at Starry Night

We have one of the best fights to be in the Northwest in some time. We have Bull Chamberlain from Jamaica who has had fifteen fights sporting a record of 12 wins, 2 draws and 1 loss. In his last fight he fought popular trial horse Fred Elam to draw in California. So you see, the Bull will be trying to overthrow Carter in a ten round fight to be held at the Starry Night Club in Portland, December 11, which will start at 8:00 p.m.

Because the Bull did most of his fighting in Jamaica and it makes his record hard to check, Thad Spencer went up to Seattle to watch the Bull spar. Thad is confident in the fight.

He said we can let the Bull box with the commissioner who has been working with Carter, and then he can see that we have a perfect fight.

Bull and his manager both agreed to box Lee Jenkins in front of the commission and the media to prove to them that he is a young and up-coming fighter, with strength and desire to become the WBA Intercontinental Middle-Weight Champion of the world.

Remember December 11, at The Starry Night Club in Portland, 8 N.W. 6th, there will be five great fights, the main event with Charles "Machine Gun" Carter and Bull Chamberlain.

Indiana Pacer Macy gets smothered by Blazers' Caldwell Jones and Steve Johnson during former Blazer coach Jack Ramsey's return to Portland. The Blazers, with Jones' 10 rebounds, eight points and four blocked shots, all in 28 minutes of play, beat the Pacers 108-95 in Sunday night's game. Photo by Richard J. Brown

Infant Care Class

Prepare Childbirth Association is offering another in its series of popular infant care classes. This one-night seminar is designed to help parents survive the postpartum period. Topics to be covered include: care and behavior of the newborn, choosing a pediatrician, buying practical baby clothes, and equipping the nursery on a budget.

The next infant care seminar is scheduled for Thursday evening, December 4th from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. It will be held at Emanuel Hospital, 2801 N. Gantenbein in Room 1077. Glenda Peterson, PCA instructor and former public health nurse will lead this informal session. Cost is $5.00 per family and pre-registration is required. Call PCA at 245-3196 by December 1st to sign up. Be ready to bring your "Yuppy puppy" home from the hospital.

PSU "Community Organizing" Courses Offered

Two courses will be offered winter term through the Division of Continuing Education at Portland State University.

Community Organizing I, WS 199/Soc 199, explores organizing methods developed by neighborhood projects in the welfare rights, civil rights, peace and student, and women's movements. The history, theory, and techniques of community organizing will be studied, with this knowledge to be applied to the course by conducting a group project or by continuing a personal project. Students have worked with a variety of organizations, including OSPERG, the Women's Union, PSU CASA (Central America Study and Action), Northwest Pilot Project, International Students Assoc. This course is offered Tues. evenings from 6:40 - 9:20 PM.

Community Organizing II, WS 199/Soc 199, reviews some of the basic concepts presented in C.O. I, and focuses on Community Development and Problem Solving. Some of the topics to be explored include group problem-solving, fundraising techniques, empowerment of individuals and groups, dealing with burnout, and specific interests of constituent groups, such as Asian Americans, Blacks, Latinos, Lesbians and Gays, Women, and Physically Challenged Individuals. Students may continue a project begun earlier, in C.O. I or as part of their own political work, or they may work on a new one. This course is offered Thurs. evenings from 6:40 - 9:20 PM.

Both classes are 3 credits each and cost $133 each. Students do not have to be enrolled at Portland State to take the classes. For information, call the instructor, Natasha Beck, at 229-3516 or 233-7324; to register, contact the Division of Continuing Education, 1633 SE Park Ave., 229-4803.
