Bits & Pieces

Soul Food Moves Downtown

The Zodiac Club, now under an all-Black management team, has replaced the infamous "Slovak" with one of the jamminist Soul Food menus ever. This includes Chicken, Greens, Yams, Ham, Neckbones, Dirty Rice, Cornbread and more.

Being an admitted eataholic, you can catch me either lunch or dinner-time stuffing my face and enjoying the good music and atmosphere that the "new" Zodiac provides. See ya there!

N.E. Residents Unite to "Say No to Drugs"

On Feb. 14th everyone is invited to the Royal Esquire to join forces with your neighbors to "Say No to Drugs". This gathering is in entertainment form, so be ready to enjoy yourselves. The evening will feature some of the hottest lipsync acts I have ever seen from Aretha Franklin to Janet Jackson. A special guest appearance will be made by last week's featured Untouchable Krew who will perform "Pipe Dreams" and "Slave to the Rock", two anti-drug songs. The evening will be complete only when you get there. Don't miss it!

Word of the Week: Martyr—one who makes great sacrifice for his principles.

Color of the Week: Bronze

Oprah Winfrey portrays Bigger's mother, Mrs. Thomas, in Native Son.

"Native Son"

Two weeks ago, I attended a special preview of "Native Son", the new movie based on Richard Wright's classic novel.

Maybe my opinion is biased, because I read the book, but when the lights came up, I was really disappointed. The actors did a very good job, but their screenplay left a lot to be desired. So little attention was paid to the drama that kept me awake when I read the book, that I wonder if the writers even bothered to read the whole book or if they interpreted a Readers Digest condensed version. Some things are better left alone.
