

THE ENTERTAINMENT SEEN

Act One

Kristina Nehm and Ernie Dingo portray lovers Trilby and Phil in Bruce Beresford's sensitive drama, "The Fringe Dweller," from Atlantic Releasing.

The Fringe Dwellers

by Bruce Beresford

Beresford, whose accomplished work includes "The Getting of Wisdom," "Tender Mercies" and most recently "Crimes of the Heart," returned to Australia to produce this sensitive adaptation of Nene Gate's novel of a poor family living in appalling conditions on the edge of a small out back town. An intimate, personal film with a large, mainly aboriginal cast, Beresford achieves a sensitive telling of the story of a wife who must cope with a lethargic husband, fractious daughters, various unwanted in-laws, and barely remembers the few aboriginal words taught to her as a child. (98 mins.)
