

Two Deans Appointed at PCC

Two new executive deans have been selected to manage the Portland Community College Cascade and Sylvania campuses, according to President Daniel F. Moriarty. A national search for the two administrators drew more than 100 applicants.

Dr. Donald W. McInnis, former Director of Community Colleges for the Colorado State Board for Community Colleges and Occupational Education, will start at Cascade campus April 1.

The Sylvania appointee is Dr. Jessica L. Bailey, who has been assistant to the vice chancellor for instruction and operations at the Minnesota Community College System Office in St. Paul. She will start May 1.

"I was looking for strong people who could provide leadership on each campus and add special skills that could not be duplicated elsewhere in the district," said Dr. Moriarty. "Dr. McInnis has a background in vocational education and Dr. Bailey's strengths are in the arts and sciences."

McInnis was president of Pikes Peak Community College for nine years and served as dean of instruction at Richland College in the Dallas, Texas, community college system. He was an instructor of apprentice machinists and math/blue print programs before accepting administrative positions in Occupational Education at Columbia Basin College in Washington state and Continuing Education/Community Services at El Centro College, Dallas, Texas. He also has had experience as the owner of a private business.

A native of Washington state, McInnis has doctorate from Washington State University, master's and bachelor's degrees from Central Washington University, and an associate degree from Yakima Valley College.

Dr. Bailey was dean of instruction and acting president at Worthington (Minnesota) Community College. She has been a psychology and foreign language instructor and a counselor. She also has had administrative experience in financial aid, policy planning and research, and in student and minority affairs.

Bailey has a doctorate from the University of Minnesota, an M.S. from the University of Wisconsin, and a bachelor's degree from Lakeland College, Sheboygan, Wis. She also has a diploma from the University of Paris and earned state certification as a school psychologist from the University of Wisconsin.

Both of the executive dean appointees attended a March 2 meeting of the PCC Board of Directors during which their selections, recommended by President Moriarty, were approved by the board.

Radio Help

"We have a radio and can help you request emergency assistance." That's the message Pacific Power & Light Company hopes to convey with the red and white RADIO HELP signs that are now on all of the company's radio-equipped vehicles.

"The idea behind the RADIO HELP promotion is simple," said Rich Cannon, Rose City district manager. "We want people to know that we have radios in our trucks that can be used to call the police, fire department or an ambulance during a crisis."

Cannon stressed that RADIO HELP is not intended to involve Pacific employees in law enforcement activities, but is merely an effort to be a good neighbor.

Drivers are trained to respond quickly to emergency request. When approached, the Pacific employee will radio the company dispatcher, who will take down the location and key facts and contact the appropriate emergency agency.
