

An awards luncheon at the Red Lion Inn/Columbia River, was held to honor 52 crews of the Summer Youth Weatherization Program who weatherized the homes of thousands of low income residents in Oregon. The essay contest "What I Have Learned and What Benefits I Have Received From the Summer Youth Weatherization Program" was held and the Portland Crew performed the essay to rap music. The Crew won $50. Gov. Neil Goldschmidt was on hand to present some of the awards. L-R: Long Mua, Kenneth Jones, Elijah Mirochnik and Boun Dysok. Photo by Richard J. Brown

Daniels-Johnson Family Reunion: July 31, 1987

The Daniels-Johnson family reunion, July 31—August 2, 1987, was an event family members won't soon forget. 200 relatives from several states gathered for three days of fellowship, old and new memories.

Thomas Johnson and family moved to Portland from Iberia, Missouri, in 1912 and was the first Black family to settle in Lake Oswego. His daughter, Effie Johnson-Lee was one of Portland's first Black mail carriers and was instrumental in getting Black women admitted in the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA). Minnie Johnson, another of Johnson's daughters, taught school in Lake Oswego and was one of the area's only Black teachers.

Ransom Daniels, patriarch of the Daniels family, moved from Nowata, Oklahoma, in 1914 and settled in Lake Oswego. There he worked at a livery stable in downtown Portland—work that was typically denied to Blacks. He later worked with the Columbia Steel and Casting Co., where he retired after 40 years. Ransom met and married Minnie Johnson, daughter of Thomas Johnson, uniting the two families.

The reunion began Friday evening, with a tour of Portland and a scenic drive through the Columbia Gorge. Family members reunited on Saturday at a picnic held in Portland's Laurelhurst Park, where 200, ranging in age from 6 weeks to 90 years, met for food and fellowship. Later that evening, five generations of both Daniels and Johnsons shared entertainment and memories at the Viscount Hotel. The day closed with family portraits and a party for the young people.

Sunday morning, family members met at Greater Mt. Calvary Church of God in Christ where Bishop H.B. Daniels pastors. His youngest brother, Rev. R.A. Daniels from Lamesa, Texas, was the featured speaker.

The oldest member of the Johnson family, Effie Johnson-Lee, and the oldest member of the Daniels family, Clifford Daniels, were honored at a brunch Sunday morning. The youngest member of either clan was the 6-week-old son of Sherrill and Clifford Daniels, Jr. Together, the young and old shared their experiences, memories and a commitment to hold the family together.

The Johnson and Daniels families thanked God for the rare opportunity to reflect on their past and remember their rich heritage, to rekindle old friendships and begin new ones.

PCC Announces Saturday Registration

Fall term registration times from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays, September 12 and 19, have been added to Wednesday evening hours to accommodate students who work and want to register for classes at Portland Community College.

Fall term starts the week of September 21.

Registration is on a "drop-in" basis at all four PCC locations. Students can register at any location, unless program approval is required. If instructor approval is required, it is noted in the class schedule.

Fall class schedules were mailed to residents in the PCC district and additional copies are available at libraries within the PCC district, Safeway stores and major shopping centers.

These schedule of classes also outlines how to register by mail and by telephone.

PCC Offers Free Class on Burglary Prevention

Joe Midgett of the Portland Police Bureau will instruct a free class, "Home Security: Keeping Burglars Out!", from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, September 23, at the Cascade Campus of Portland Community College, 705 N. Killingsworth St. Midgett, assigned to the bureau's Crime Prevention Unit, will discuss deadbolt locks, doors and door frames, windows, sliding glass doors and alarm systems. The session will be in Room B43 of Cascade Hall.

Further information is available from Cascade Community Education, 244-6111, Ext. 5205.

Getting and Keeping Customers

The Portland Community College Small Business Development Center will offer a workshop, "Getting and Keeping Your Customers the Easy Way", from 8 a.m. until 12 noon Thursday, September 17, in the board room of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, 221 N.W. Second Ave.

Topics include: how outrageously successful businesses get and keep customers; why customers keep coming back; and how to seize the opportunity no one else sees.

The workshop will be conducted by Marsia Gunter, vice president of D.E. Smith Marketing, Inc. and Bill Kutz, president of Missions That Work. Gunter and Kutz are also business instructors at Marylhurst College and Portland Community College Small Business Development Center.

PCC Small Business Development Center, the Portland Chamber of Commerce and the U.S. Small Business Administration are co-sponsoring the workshop.

The cost of the workshop is $10. Information and registration are available from PCC Small Business Development Center, 273-2828.
