

THE ENTERTAINMENT SEEN

Worthy, Adrian Branch, Mychal Thompson, Magic Johnson, Michael Cooper, Billy Thompson.

"Just Say No"

Capitol records and the World Champion Lakers announced the release of the 12" anti-drug rap single, "Just Say No."

This is the first time a major, national sports team has consolidated their efforts to fight the war against drugs by recording a song and video telling children to "just say no to drugs." The rap song has individual players taking turns at the mike, including coach Pat Riley.

The record is available in all stores. Royalties from the sale of the record will benefit the Forum Community Services, a non-profit charity organization.

Visual Eye Productions has created a video of "Just Say No" that has been released to video music channels. September 24, 1987, CBS/Fox and NBA Entertainment will release a twenty-minute home video of "Just Say No" which includes the video clip and behind-the-scene "making of" footage.

"Just Say No" was written by Angela Worthy, Jett Edwards, Marcell Falls, Lorrin Bates, and Margeree Johnson; George Duke produced.

Forum Community Services was formed by the wives of the Lakers Organization in 1984. Their goals are to reach the children of Inglewood with educational and anti-drug programs. Accomplishments have included: scholarships for deserving high school students in the area, bringing the DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program into the school system, and the "Just Say No" project.

Audition Notice

O.J. Ekemode, an Afro-beat pioneer.

Sizzling Afro-Beat at Pine Street Theater

Sizzling Afro-beat comes to Portland September 25th when O.J. Ekemode and the Nigerian All-Stars play Pine Street Theater at 9:00 p.m.

This high-energy band, which has been getting "must see" reviews on their tours, displays onstage the spirit of the unity, love and positiveness typical of African pop music (Fela excepted). Many of the lyrics are in the Yoruba language and are mostly religious or praising people, food and love. However, they have songs of political overtones, as well, presented with positive energy.

Nigerian-saxophonist O.J. Ekemode has a long history as an Afro-beat pioneer with a recording history that began in Nigeria in the late Fifties. O.J.'s music incorporates the very varied styles of Nigerian music plus a little rock and reggae, creating infectious rhythms one must dance to.

His present band is made up of excellent musicians, many of whom have been on tours with King Sunny Ade and Sonny Okosuns. This 12-member band features a variety of drums and percussion, a brass section, as well as three women dancers/singers.

Tickets are $6.50 at the door.

Public Service Announcement

Elizabeth Linder, mother of slain Benjamin Linder, will speak Sunday, September 20, 1987, at 7:30 p.m. at the Friends' Meetinghouse, 4312 S.E. Stark, Portland.

Benjamin Linder, a 27-year-old engineer from Portland, was killed by U.S.-backed Contras in Nicaragua on April 28, along with two Nicaraguans. Elizabeth Linder, who is co-president of the Portland chapter of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, will show slides of Benjamin's rural electrification work in Nicaragua as well as discuss the circumstances of his death by the hands of Contra forces. She will also share information about the Benjamin Linder Memorial Fund, established to carry forth the work of Ben Linder.

For more information, please contact Madeline Moore, 236-0278 (evenings) or Chris Cradler, 287-6601.

County Volunteers Given Recognition

Multnomah County will be holding a public event at noon Tuesday, September 22 in Terry Schunk Plaza, S.W. 3rd Avenue and Madison Street, to thank all of its volunteers.

The festive event will feature music by Thara Memory and the Oregon Youth Big Band and a cake-cutting ceremony led by Multnomah County Chair Gladys McCoy.

The event is one of several activities planned for "Know Your County Month" in September.
