NEWSWORTHY TRENDS

BUSINESS HELPS STUDENTS GET HIGH ON HAPPINESS, NOT ON DRUGS

What is the most popular campaign among secondary students in America today? "SAYING NO" to drugs.

What are students using as a guideline to say no to drugs? The Way To Happiness book.

Who's behind the campaign? Business people concerned about the workforce of the future.

Over half a million students in over 900 schools from each of the 50 states are out to set a good example. They're taking the initiative and putting hard work into the effort to get drugs off their school campuses. One of the ways they're doing it is by reading and giving copies of The Way To Happiness book to friends and fellow students.

These students are involved in the national Set a Good Example Contest, a private sector campaign sponsored by the Concerned Businessmen's Association of America (CBAA) to encourage student leadership to influence their peers in a positive way... AWAY FROM DRUGS. Books and materials are provided to schools free of charge from CBAA businesses sponsoring the campaign.

The Way To Happiness book lays out a stable path for youth to follow based on honesty, trust, and integrity. Simple and easy to read it outlines ways to achieve competence and fulfill one's obligations, as well as set a good example by fair treatment and respect of others.

The book provides common sense standards of right and wrong youth can agree with and actually use when making a sound decision is crucial. Students are adopting the book as a personal guide to ethical behavior because it doesn't preach.

The contest effort is paying off as more and more students "say yes" to happiness and "no" to drugs.

For a free copy of The Way To Happiness book send $1 for postage and handling to the Concerned Businessmen's Association of America, 3540 Wilshire Blvd., #320, Los Angeles, CA 90010. For further information call (1-800-782-6767).
