

Employment & Contracting Opportunities with Metro

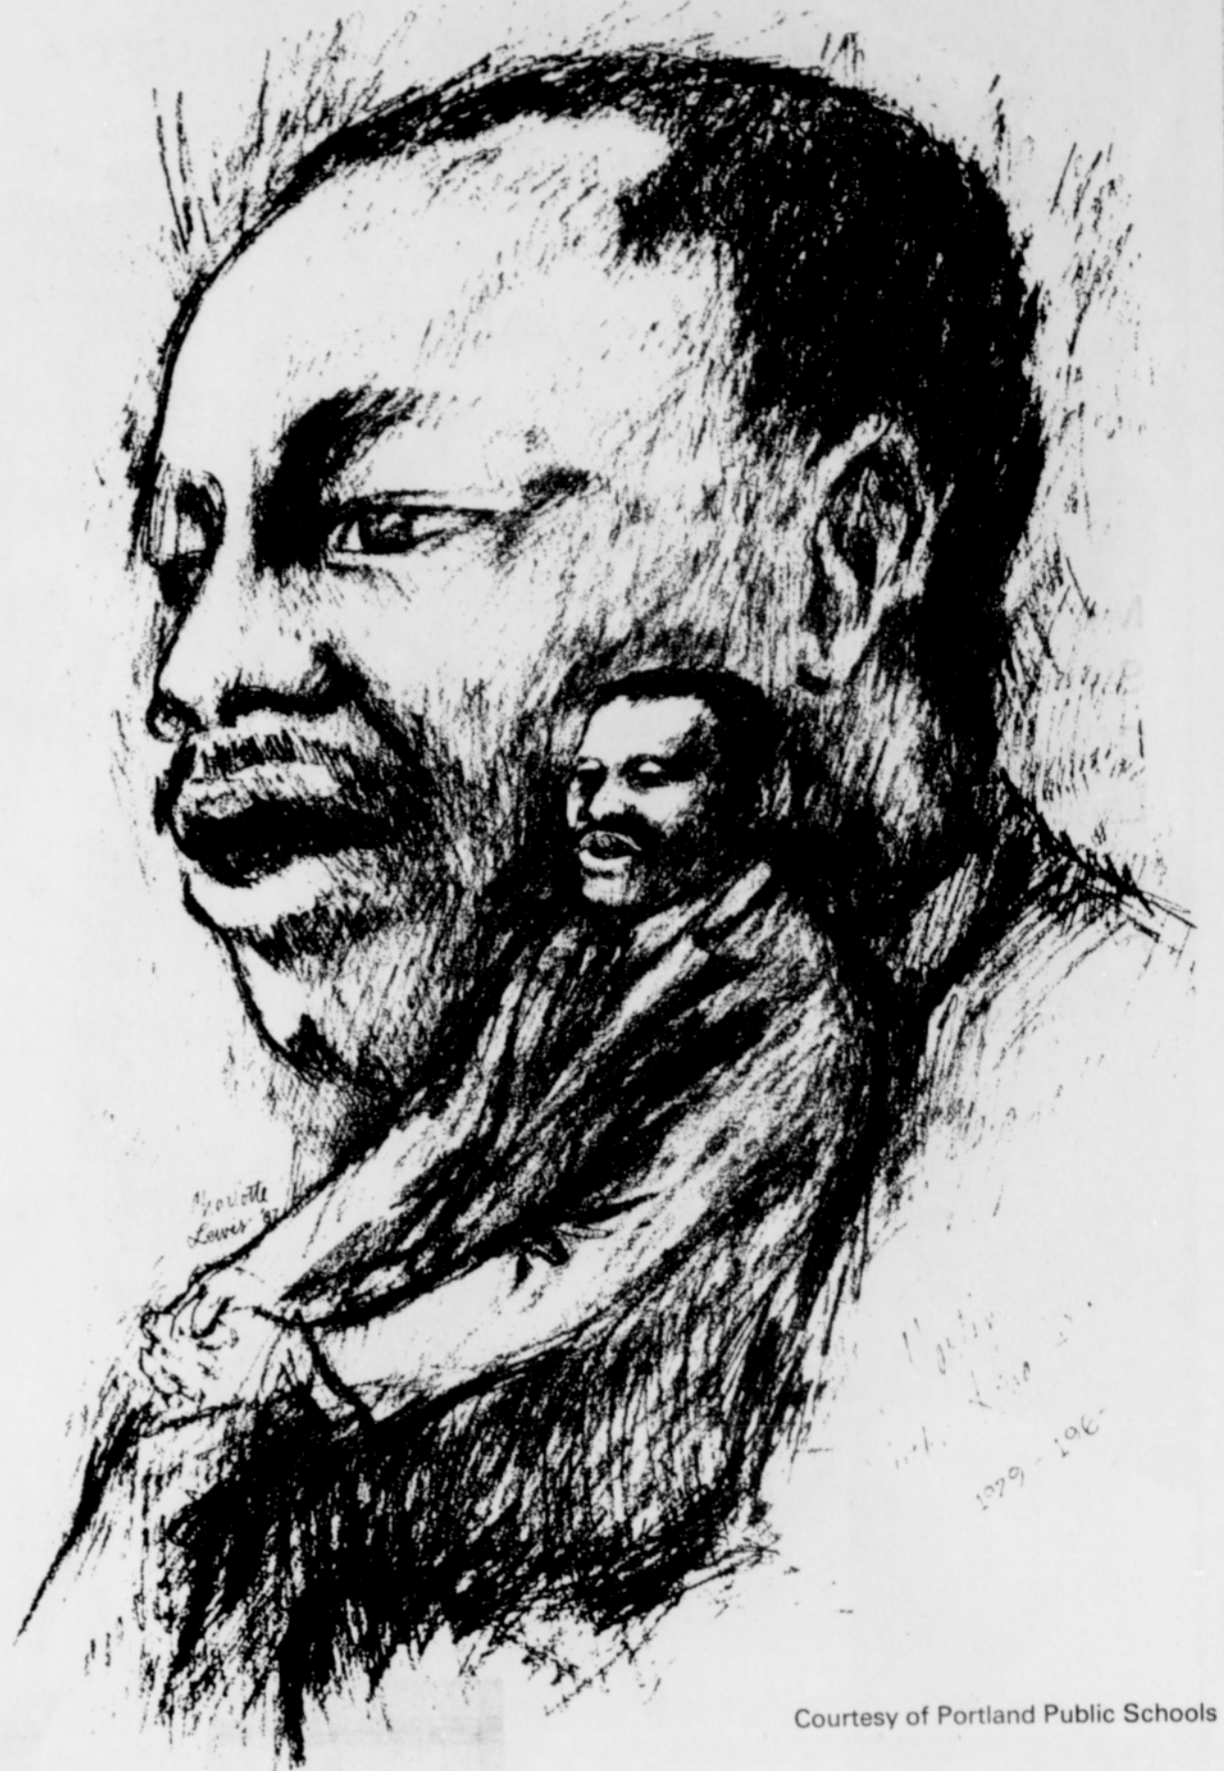

The Metropolitan Service District is a regional government and serves the urban areas of Multnomah, Washington and Clackamas counties.

Metro is responsible for:

- The Washington Park Zoo
- Solid waste disposal and recycling
- Transportation planning
- Development services
- Data and census analysis
- Oregon Convention Center Project

Metro employs 200 full-time employees and is an equal-opportunity employer. We encourage qualified women and minorities to apply for job openings or to have their names placed on file for future openings. We encourage disadvantaged and women's business enterprises to compete for and participate in contracting and procurement programs. For information, call 221-1646.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Portland's Highland Elementary School was renamed for the late Martin Luther King in 1968 — without surveys or other red tape.

Then the Portland School District, again responsive to community desires, named the school's adjacent Neighborhood Facility to commemorate Dr. King and later named its newest middle school to honor Harriet Tubman.

Names, statues and portraits are only symbolic, however. Is there substance to match the dreams of the slain civil-rights leader?

Consider the Portland School District's pioneer commitments to affirmative action and to development of districtwide multicultural/multiethnic education.

Portland Public Schools believes all of its students are capable of educational excellence. And proves it every school day.

Are there any better birthday presents?
