White Is Always "Write"

by Mattie Ann Callier-Spear

Sometime around 12 midnight, a trace of light can be seen through a door slightly cracked. With everyone fast asleep, including the house itself, a young man diligently writes about his day. Not rendering much to verse or prose, the aspiring writer, all in three pages, records his entire day.

This young man was born and raised in "P" town (as the young people call it), Portland. He attended Elliott, Bridlemile (through the busing system) and Alameda

Marcus Christopher White

Elementary Schools.

Marcus Christopher White is one of three very tall sons born to Charles and Sharon McCurley White.

Marcus attended and graduated from Benson Polytechnical High School. Radio broadcasting became an endeavor which Marcus pursued. Though it was only a class, KBPS radio enabled White to gain hands on experience at the station. It was through KBPS that Marcus White developed a desire to pursue a journalism career.

Producing plays and writing spots greatly enhanced Marcus' skills. Not only did he learn to write plays and spots, but also was able to operate the switchboards at the station.

An area of broadcasting Marcus feels he will always remember are the live sporting events. Familiar to many as "play-by-plays", Marcus read and operated live broadcasts of high school sporting events.

Standing at an eye lifting height of six feet, Marcus played the position of forward on the varsity basketball team with the Benson "Tech Men".

Marcus' older brother, Charles Ray White, Jr., graduated from Moorehouse College in May of 1987 with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Physics. He now works for ROLM—IBM as a sales representative marketing telephone systems for computerized branch exchange.

When Marcus graduated from Benson, he attended Moorehouse, also. During the summer months following his junior year at Moorehouse, Marcus went to Chicago with the Campus Crusade for Christ to minister and witness to the young gang members and the young people found in the ghettos. His message to them was to "Never give up. Don't let Satan win. God has already overcome this world. Let Jesus into your lives. You don't have to keep on living like this. Give your lives to Jesus, right now!"

He went back to campus with a great deal more insight than he had when he first embarked upon his summer venture.

Marcus graduated from Moorehouse College, which is one of five campuses belonging to the Atlanta University Center. He now has a degree in Journalism with a concentration in English. Marcus enjoys writing about people and has maintained a steady career of writing for various newspapers and publications in the Atlanta area.

"As most writers", says Marcus, "I enjoy writing feature stories, simply because you have the freedom to create a story from your own perspective."

Now that he has finished college, Marcus seeks to write for a television network or a news publication. Says Marcus, "I understand that it's a very competitive market out there, but the fact is, I am the competition they (the masses) are competing against."

Recently, Marcus took a trip to Los Angeles and met Phyllis Tucker, NBC Vice President of Children's Programming. Tucker offered White a non-paying internship with NBC.

"At first the offer sounded great, but there is a large sum of money involved for my staying in L.A.," said Marcus.

Marcus says that L.A. is a nice place to visit, but he prefers Atlanta, Georgia. "I've grown accustomed to Atlanta, and, unlike L.A., there are not a whole lot of people you have to deal with in terms of living space", he said.

The youngest sibling of the White clan, William David White (better known as 'Billy'), graduated from Grant High School, was the Student Body President, and is now attending Moorehouse College. Billie is studying Business Real Estate Development.

Sharon and Charles, the parents; Otis White, Mr. and Mrs. Willie McCurley, the grandparents; and Mr. Lonnie Wilson, the great uncle are all very proud of Marcus' accomplishments and those of his brothers. The congregation of the Mount Olivet Baptist Church all send their warmest congratulations for a job well done.

Ms. Cleovonne Jackson, receives warmest regards from Marcus and his family for the spiritual advice and Bible teachings, which came at a time when it was really needed. "It truly made a positive difference in our lives."

Today

Oh Lord, I thank You for today
Each precious hour along the way.
The brilliant dawn and noon's warm rays
The sky at sunset, twilight's haze.

I do not take for granted, God
The seagull and the goldenrod
The sparkling glimmers on the sea
Your loving touches, touching me.

Though I'm at times preoccupied
With pain and problems sorely tried
Somehow with joy my heart sings out
For this beauty You've brought about.

I've had my share of bliss and sorrow
But know not if I'll have tomorrow
So, for what we've shared in sweet accord
Today, I thank You, living Lord.

In Memory Of ...

Jewell Winifred Fowlkes-Bowman
August 18, 1921 - August 7, 1988

Jewell Winifred Fowlkes Bowman, age 67, of Portland, Oregon passed away early last Sunday morning while hospitalized.

Mrs. Bowman was a native of Pickering, Louisiana and was the last of 10 children born to John A. and Hettie P. Fowlkes on August 18, 1921.

Mrs. Bowman taught in parochial schools and in the Portland Public Schools. She was a very kind and loving person who will be missed by many.

She was a long time member of Mt. Olivet Baptist Church where she served in the Sunday School, the Business and Professional Women's auxiliary and other church related assignments. Her grasping presence was felt every Sunday morning when she would announce the church news and make guests, visitors and the general congregation welcomed to her church. In 1982, the church awarded her with the "Mother of the Year" accolade.

She is survived by her son, Joseph S. Bowman III of Austin, Texas, her daughter, Janeen Shawn Bowman-Brown of Portland, Oregon, three grandchildren and countless relatives found predominantly in Texas, Louisiana and Oregon. Friends and professional acquaintances abound throughout the world.

She should best be remembered as an ardent lover of God and country, an admirer of courage and truth, a dedicated soror of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., a tender mother and a loving sister and a cheerful friend.

Funeral services were held on Saturday, at 1:00 p.m. at the Mount Olivet Baptist Church.
