Jefferson Excellence

by LaShonda Hodges and Becky Burleigh

When most people think of Jefferson, they think of the Performing Arts program, but Jefferson's academic program provides the cement for the school. Jefferson students continue to prove that success can happen with determination. Charles Collins, Jefferson's student body president, upholds Jefferson's tradition by strengthening the school and community through his leadership.

"It's fabulous!," was Collins' first impression of Jefferson. After Collins moved here from Detroit he and his family chose Jefferson as the place for Collins to earn his high school diploma. Collins feels Jefferson has the potential to be the best school in Portland because of the diverse ethnic backgrounds represented by its students and the balance between academics, athletics, and the Performing Arts.

Charles also remarked about Jefferson's positive atmosphere. He attributes this to the mixture of the students' backgrounds. He also says the administration is open to the students. There is even a tutor period offered for students who need special help in classes.

Charles' achievements are varied. Besides being student body president, and a member of the school's leadership class, Charles stays involved in community events. He has maintained a 3.17 grade point average. He won an Image Award for good grades. He recently received an Emerald Award from Alpha Kappa Alpha for being an exemplary young Black male and leading role model in the community.

When asked who inspired him, he named the author Langston Hughes, Rev. Jesse Jackson, and Martin Luther King, Jr. They are, as Collins quotes, "poets of their own work." The ones who motivated Collins to work hard are God, his mom, students around him, and his own determination. He feels one teacher, Mr. Brooks, has helped him a lot in Government and Social Studies.

Charles Collins offers the following advice to all young people to help them excel: "Know that you can reach the highest star. Have a feeling inside you which is so strong and so deep that it roars like a never-ending ocean. Never let anyone stop you and simply realize your full potential."

LaShonda and Becky are members of Jefferson's Students for Social responsibility a Jefferson group concerned with local and world issues.

O.A.M.E. To Meet

The Oregon Association of Minority Entrepreneurs, O.A.M.E. Center will hold its next 'Coffee & Issues' Forum on Friday, Dec. 16, 1988. It will begin at 7:00 a.m. and end networking between 8:00 - 8:30 a.m.

The forums are being held to maintain communication between Ethnic Minority Businesses in Oregon. They are usually held the 2nd and 4th Friday morning of each month as needed. However the November & December meetings have been scheduled with the holidays in consideration.

This "Coffee & Issues' will focus on Business Opportunities from general services, state of Oregon, and plan of action as a result of Judge Redden's decision.

The forum will be held at the Lloyd Tower Building, 12th floor; conference rooms A & B. Visitor parking will be available.

Undeliver Tax Refunds Waiting To Be Claimed

Over $18,000 in unclaimed federal income tax refunds are waiting for their proper owners to file claims for them, according to Carolyn Leonard, Internal Revenue Service District Director for Oregon. Leonard explained that most of these refunds are going unclaimed for lack of a current ad-

The Portland District IRS office has received names of nearly 500 persons who filed refund due federal income tax returns from Oregon. The original refund checks were mailed to the home address listed on the tax form but were returned to the government as undeliverable by the Post

Leonard said many checks remain undelivered because taxpayers have moved and failed to leave a forwarding address with the Post Office. Other refund delays, according to Leonard, are caused by errors and omissions on the tax return, or illegible names or

Taxpayers should call the IRS tollfree tax information number (1-800-424-1040) for instructions on how to apply for their checks. Information needed includes: name and address as shown on the tax return, present name and address, tax year for which the refund is believed due, social security number, amount of refund claimed, signature of taxpayer, and any other pertinent information to verify

Non-Profit Groups Reject Albina Service Contact

We are announcing that none of our non-profit groups will contract with the State to replace services currently performed at Albina Human Resources Center (A.H.R.C.).

On November 18, 1988, the Legislative Emergency Board approved a recommendation from the Director of the Department of Human Resources eliminating seven staff positions at Albina Human Resources Center. In a meeting at Albina Human Resources Center on November 30, 1988, Department of Human Resources Director, Kevin Concannon, reported that services for low-income families would be contracted out to non-profit groups in Northeast Portland, with requests for proposals going to Albina Ministerial Alliance, Black United Fund, St. Vincent dePaul and the Urban League of Portland.

The terms of the contract proposed by Department of Human Resources do not allow for the staffing necessary for responsible distribution of public and private resources to those in need. Department of Human Resource's plan for the continuation of services cannot begin to cover what will be lost by the elimination of the Center

Administration staff. We urge Governor Goldschmidt and Department of Human Resource's Director Kevin Concannon to rescind the layoffs of vital Albina Human Resources Center staff and to strengthen the center for more effective service to those in need.

Business in Focus

Terry Dixon is the founder and Executive Director of the Portland based Computer Software Consulting firm "Data Processing Resources, Inc."

Terry is a native Oregonian. He graduated from Lincoln High, and furthered his education in Michigan where he earned an Associate Degree in Business Management at Parsons Business College. Upon returning to Portland, he began his career as an accountant while attending night classes at the Computer Career Institute where he earned a certificate in Business Data Processing and Computer Software Development.

In 1978 Terry ended his accounting career and entered the computer services profession. In the last ten years he has established himself as an active and respected member of Portland's data processing community.

Terry describes the operation of his three year old Data Processing firm, which currently employs 14 Computer Software Consultants, as "Simply put, we custom develop computer software for our clients in much the same way that a tailor custom tailors a suit. Most of our clients have such unique requirements of their computer system that they can't simply buy their software off the rack."

He reveals his formula for success as "a combination of hard work and ethical conduct," and he urges youth hoping to build a professional career to "just say no-way to drugs, yes to education and be prepared for plenty

Data processing Resources, Inc. is the only Black owned and operated computer software consulting firm in Portland. Terry takes pride in managing an equal opportunity employment firm, but finds it difficult to recruit qualified Black applicants.

Terry's plans for the future include continuing to personally manage Data Processing Resources, Inc. for another 10 years, and then start a Portland based real estate firm.
