WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Portland's Highland Elementary School was renamed for the late Martin Luther King in 1968 — without surveys or other red tape.

Then the Portland School District, again responsive to community desires, named the school's adjacent Neighborhood Facility to commemorate Dr. King and later named its newest middle school to honor Harriet Tubman.

Names, statues and portraits are only symbolic, however. Is there substance to match the dreams of the slain civil-rights leader?

Consider the Portland School District's pioneer commitments to affirmative action and to development of districtwide multicultural/multiethnic education.

Portland Public Schools believes all of its students are capable of educational excellence. And proves it every school day.

Are there any better birthday presents?

The Dream

"It is not enough to be concerned about the soul of man; you've got to be concerned about the body and the environmental conditions, which may scar the soul."

"We must come to see that human progress never rolls in on wheels of inevitability. It comes through the tireless efforts and persistent work of men willing to be co-workers with God, and without this hard work time itself becomes an ally of the forces of social stagnation. We must use time creatively, and forever realize that the time is always ripe to do right."

From "Letter from a Birmingham Jail",
