RENEE'S SEASONING "a family affair"

Born in Portland, Oregon 24 years ago, Ms. Shirleen Renee Richardson has become one of the Northwest's fast growing, young, black, female entrepreneurs.

Ms. Richardson is the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Pruitt Richardson. She is one of four children; one girl among 3 brothers. Her brothers Victor, John and Hansen Richardson are very proud of their sister's intuitiveness that is reaping her much success in the field of food.

Shirleen began in the restaurant business along with her mother and father in 1986. The restaurant was opened for approximately 7-8 months, before closing its doors due to high overhead costs and the lack of reliable help. Shirleen and her mother did all the cooking. Evelyn (her mother) would come straight from work to the restaurant and relieve Shirleen. "That got to be a bit much!" says Shirleen.

Gumbo and Shufly-high chicken were the specialties of the house. Every customer that came into the restaurant had their taste buds delighted whenever they dined at the WILL, EVELYN & RENEE CAFE. The cafe was located on Northeast Dekum and 10th Avenue.

While cooking every day in the restaurant, Shirleen would mix her own special seasonings to season the food. It was and has such a good flavor. The special herbs and spices that Shirleen would mix together just, excited the palate. "Mom is the brains of the operation" says Shirleen. "She came in one day and told me to write down every ingredient I had placed into that mixture." "Let me tell you" she continued, "that was very hard to do." She had already worked all day over a hot stove, waited on customers and had to work the 'till; now she had to stay at the restaurant for God-knows-how-long and write down all this stuff.

It took her, approximately, two, plus, hours to completely think out and through all the ingredients that she had placed into the mixture. She can still remember the feeling of tiredness felt when she finally went home. She literally fell into her bed.

Well, she got it together and it is now on the market.... "RENEE'S SEASONINGS". You can find it on the shelves at the following stores: AG Market on NE 15th and Brazee, the Alameda Store on 24th and NE Fremont, Corno's on SE Union Avenue and Craigo's on N. Williams and Beech. She is presently negotiating with other locations and presenting her product in food shows/fairs all over the United States.

She plans to have her product in, at least, 30 states by this time next year. "My name is Shirleen Renee Richardson. The restaurant, also, carried my name--RENEE--but how we got it on the seasoning is probably because I mixed it and--EXOTIC-- because of its different and unusual flavor."

Shirleen and her mother plan to attend the Food Fair in Seattle, Washington--this month. The product brought many raves at the Oregon First Product Show, which was held at the Montgomery Park Building. "RENEE'S EXOTIC SEASONING" was one of 100 - 125 different displays presented that day.

Packing is done at the Oregon Spice. The spices that go into those bottles are very potent. "I can't give away the secret; but the main ingredient is 'God'."

Seattle will have booths introducing seasonings from all over the Northwest. Shirleen will be introducing to Seattle and the entire Washington area, her exotic seasoning; which will be prepared in dips, pate's and terriyaki meatballs.

Distribution has already begun in California with the help of her brother--John; in Texas with the help of her mother's sisters--Sharon and Reva; and in Denver with the help of her brother--Victor.

Shirleen is, also, available for catering. Contact her at (503) 281-3351, 236 SW Salmon Suite A, Portland, Oregon 97204. "I've always liked to cook. Mom said I was always in the kitchen inventing something. She said that she knew that one day I would mix something wonderful." As Shirleen sat pondering her thoughts, I asked her to spew a bit of wisdom onto the young people's heads who may read this article, she shared, "You can be whatever you want to be if you put your mind to it."

Portland Memorial A Beauty

Until his death in 1957, each week Humphrey Bogart always sent a bouquet of seasonal roses to the grave of his first wife Mayo Methot interred in the Portland Memorial. The facility is located on a knoll overlooking the Willamette River at S. E. 14th and Bybee Boulevard. During its 88 year existence the memorial has been the repository for the mortal remains of more than 70,000 persons. Included among them are John Yeon, Rudy Wilhelm and Mayor George L. Baker. Numerous memorials have been celebrated in their two chapels. The memorial is located on about seven acres in an eight story building with more than seven miles of corridors. They provide the services of a funeral home, a crematorium and quiet peaceful chapels.
