1989 Syphilis Information and Education Program

On Saturday, September 30, Neighborhood Health Clinics, Inc. will conduct a syphilis information and education survey. The purpose of the survey is to determine the levels of knowledge about syphilis, and the current high of occurrence in the target area. 50% of the target area households will be surveyed outlining the boundary south to Fremont, north to Lombard, east to 21st, and west to Interstate.

The door-to-door survey conducted by area teenagers is one of several tools that will be used in informing and educating the north and northeast neighborhoods of Portland where this particular health problem is most serious. From late 1986 through 1988, the Multnomah County Health department identified a surge in the number of reported cases of syphilis within the specified neighborhoods. The greatest percentage occurring among persons of color, especially the African Americans. Although the Syphilis epidemic is more prevalent in young adults ranging in age from the mid to late twenties, Executive Director of Neighborhood Health Clinics, James Posey, sought to use teenagers because through virtue of their sexual activity, youths are also at risk.

Neighborhood Health Clinics, a non-profit organization providing low cost/no cost medical, dental, and counseling services to unemployed and uninsured adults and children. Founded in 1974 by the St. Andrews Parrish, Neighborhood Health Clinics, operates two facilities in Portland; "Health Help Center, 5329 NE Martin Luther King, Jr. Blvd", and "Neighborcare, 2415 SE 43rd".

Rose City Connection plans sixth annual show Models will strut their stuff for scholarship fund. Nordstrom will underwrite major expenses for second year in a row

With the Fall weather already creeping into the Pacific northwest, The Rose City Connection already has plans underway for its Sixth Annual Benefit Fashion Show. According to Barbara Taylor, one of its founders, that gala event will take place on the evening of Friday, October 6, 1989 in the main ballroom of the Downtown Hilton located at the corner of Southwest Sixth and Salmon.

For the second consecutive year, the Nordstrom Company will not only co-ordinate the entire presentation, but also will underwrite all of the expenses. Their very generous gesture means that all of the moneys collected through ticket sales will be dedicated to scholarships for our youths. This year, the fashion show will be the only benefit event sponsored by the Rose City Connection. In the past they have supplemented their annual fashion show with Community Team Challenges which involved a number of interactive sports and field events with each participant being "Sponsored" by individuals from the community. The fashion show has become such a large event that its preparation consumes almost all of the free time its sponsoring group can muster.

The current event promises to be even more dazzling than previous years, if that is at all possible. It will begin with the romantic music of The Ron Steen Trio and Dennis Springer setting the mood for a happy hour with cocktails and complimentary hors d'oeuvres at 6 pm. The fashion show, itself, will begin at 7:30 and is expected to end at about 8:30 pm. This year as in the past, both male and female models will be featured. They will be a mix of persons who earn their living in that medium, students who are learning the trade and some of the nonprofessional talent who get a good amount of enjoyment out of strutting their stuff. At times it is going to be difficult for the casual observer to be able to sort out the professionals from the amateurs because Nordstroms does such an excellent job in staging this elegant event.

Tickets are on sale at Nordstroms and the various ticket outlets throughout the city. A single will cost $15 and a double will set only $25. They are tax deductible for a very worthy cause, the future of Portland's African American community.

What African-Americans Can Do About Starvation In Africa

In an exclusive EBONY article written shortly before his death, U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland tells African-Americans what they can do about starvation in Africa, reports the October issue.

Calling for increased compassion, concern and relief for the hungry on the part of African-Americans, Leland advocated that Blacks begin to identify more with Black Africa, and courageously speak out against the abuse and inhumanity there. "I believe that African-Americans, in particular, cannot afford to take the attitude that nothing will make a difference," Leland said. "We must start somewhere, and African-Americans must take the lead.

Formerly chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger, Leland led delegations to Africa in efforts to end world hunger, and urged Blacks in power to help the three-to-five million Africans at risk of starvation.
