

PSU EXTENDS ADMISSIONS OPENS REGISTRATION

Portland State University has announced extension of the deadline for formal admission to the University this fall from July 1 to August 1 and, in addition, is removing previous restrictions on advance registration for non-admitted students. That means prospective students have an additional month to apply for admission to PSU and, even prior to the granting of admission, they can register for fall classes.

A decision by the State Board of Higher Education on June 14 eliminated an enrollment limitation at PSU for the coming year. As a result of the limit, Portland State last year reduced its enrollment by nearly 1,200 students (7.4 percent).

"Removal of the enrollment lid at Portland State is good news for the metropolitan area," Interim President Roger Edgington said. "It means the University is once again free to serve the higher education needs of the state's population center. Last year we were forced to turn students away. That will not happen this year," he said.

Because of the timing of the Board's decision, the University has taken the step of extending its admissions deadline for a month as well as relaxing restrictions on advance registration, also imposed as part of last year's mandated plan to reduce enrollment.

Edgington said he was concerned that recent high school graduates and others who are thinking about starting their university studies may have thought it was too late to register or gain admission to the University. "What we want to say to those people," he said, "is that it is not too late. Our Admissions Office (Lobby of Neuberger Hall, SW Broadway between Harrison and Hall) will be open Monday through Friday. Admissions personnel will accept applications for admission through Wednesday, August 1, and advanced registration materials through Friday, August 31."

In addition, Portland State will hold its annual Freshman Orientation sessions July 28 through August 11. Prospective students may choose from weekday or Saturday sessions during which they will receive academic advising and assistance with Fall Term registration as well as information about the University and student life and services. Information about Freshman Orientation is available from the University's Advising Office, also in the Lobby of Neuberger Hall (725-4563).

Portland State University is the state's comprehensive urban university with more than 30 academic majors and programs within the main College of Liberal Arts and Science, as well as seven professional schools. The University awards more than 2,000 graduate and undergraduate degrees each year.

LOCAL BUSINESSES DONATE TIME, ENERGY TO GIVE ANOTHER CHANCE

Legacy Health Systems and Lawton Sweitzer Ratti Advertising are helping American Red Cross Pacific Northwest Regional Blood Services give patients in 74 hospitals another chance.

Legacy provided funding for an advertising campaign created by Lawton Sweitzer Ratti. Additionally, photographer Jerry Hart, Pace Video, Beaver Engraving, Schlegel Typesetting, and Tri-Met, completed the television and print advertising campaign with in-kind donations.

Lawton Sweitzer Ratti built the campaign around an American National Red Cross theme, "Give Blood, Give Another Chance," and gave it a Pacific Northwest feel and flair. "Give Another Chance" focuses on the simple things volunteer blood donors give to patients in need of transfusion—another hug, another laugh, another birthday.

Television and print ads feature a group of children in front of the Tri-Met Zoo Bus celebrating "another birthday." A teenager and her dog share "another day at the beach." And, a grandfather-grandson pair spend "another night under the stars," roasting marshmallows over a campfire.

American Red Cross Pacific Northwest Regional Blood Services must collect 540 units of blood from volunteers daily. Difficulty arises with collections during the summer months when volunteer blood donors are away on vacation and enjoying outdoor activities.

According to Kathleen Larson, Marketing and Communications director at American Red Cross, "The summer campaign serves as a reminder to donors that patients need another chance at life all year-round. Donated blood and blood products provide that chance."

Larson feels that the advertisements will call donors to action. She says, "The ads are inspiring and motivational. We are grateful to all of the businesses and individuals that made this summer-time visibility possible."

The campaign was completed July 5th, and will run through Labor Day. Blood donors must be 17, weigh 110 pounds and pass a health screening. People should call 284-4040 to schedule and appointment to give blood this summer.

Inside Outside People/Stay Clean Inc.

by Woodrow Broadnax

In 1984 on a prison yard in Salem, Oregon, a devine message was given to Donald McMillan and with that message a devine mission to establish a haven where men released from prison wouldn't be subjected to returning to the community without housing, food, support.

With a handful of men who recognized the dream, the articles for incorporation were developed for creation of the non-profit self-help group Inside Outside People.

Don's mission was clear: he was to establish a base of support that would bridge and interconnect all other services already existing, bring together factions of the community that in times past felt no profit or interest existed for men often called career criminals, undesirables in the future of this community or any community. It was his dream to "manufacture" role models for the youth of the community from these same individuals to utilize as examples for the youth of the community, against gangs and drugs, but time was running out for Don.

He shared his dream with Tom Boothe of the American State Bank who provided a house located at 5003 NE 13th. The House of Exodus, a much-needed program that was created by his wife Rosie Boothe who nurtured the idea that treatment should be provided for those who sought help. Needless to say Ms. Boothe died of cancer and the full potential of her dream went into dormancy, until Don McMillan and Tom Boothe re-affirmed that belief in Inside Outside People.

Don McMillan and Rosie Boothe are similar in the respect that they both dreamed and they both shared the pain of life-threatening cancer. God gave them the message, it was there divine mission to deliver it and only that. In 1986 Don McMillan died of prostate cancer, his mission completed. He handpicked Mr. Herbert Brown and Thomas Mason to manifest the dream and once again God's mission was revitalized in the efforts of these brothers to the success which has nurtured the program so far. Whether you call it Inside Outside People of Stay Clean, it's still God's program, and the dream of Don McMillan lives on at Sumner and in the hearts of us all. We thank God for Don McMillan, his dream, and the Stay Clean Inc. family.

This Week in History

By Angelique Sanders

July

Two weeks ago, I promised to cover the twenty-year block from 1970-1990 the following week. Due to limited space, I didn't run it last week. Since I'd already written this week's column, I'll run it next week. As for this week, I thought I'd try out a calendar format, covering significant events for each day.

11 (1970)
 A study by the Com. for Economic Development shows a sharp increase in Black migration to suburbs while central city population declined, contradictory to Lyndon Johnson's predictions that the nation was moving toward two separate societies (Black and white).

12 (1964)
 A. Fischer, Mandela's attorney (who also helped seven other nationalists), is released from solitary confinement.

13 (1968)
 Abernathy, who was known for leading riotous marches against the government in times of need for Blacks, is released from jail after being held for leading a demonstration against the Capitol.

14 (1969)
 Demonstrators picket Pepsi Cola in New York City, demanding greater support for Black banks and service companies. They were led by Rev. J.L. Jackson, then the national director of Operation Breadbasket, an economic unit of SCLC.

15 (1966)
 Police break up group of 150 Black youths in Portland after they threw stones at cars and store windows out of angered frustration.

16 (1976)
 The government in South Africa, which on the previous day had temporarily closed Black schools, sends waves of police into Johannesburg to keep African Americans better within their control.

17 (1965)
 The Civil Rights Movement Campaign, focused especially on racial problems in the North (midwest and west included), is begun in Chicago by Martin Luther King, Jr.
