SUMMER REBROADCAST SCHEDULE FOR TOWN HALL

DANGEROUS DIETS - AUGUST 5, 1990

You could lose more than weight on some diets. One in four people on low-calorie liquid diets will develop medical complications, according to a new A.M.A. study. Congressional hearings recently investigated claims made by ALL diet companies. Join Jack Faust and fad diet survivors, who'll tell what they learned about which diets are safe, and which to avoid.

RITUAL CRIMES - AUGUST 12, 1990

Satanic rituals. The sacrifice of animals, and even human. Reports of ritual abuse in the Northwest have become common. Are these isolated, unrelated incidents? Or indicators of an occult conspiracy? Jack Faust talks with survivors of ritual abuse and law enforcement officials.

CALIFORNIA INVASION! - AUGUST 19, 1990

One out of four people relocating to Oregon is from California. They are fleeing the congestion and high costs of their state for the Northwest. Will this influx revitalize Oregon's economy? Or destroy the livability of our state?!

Town Hall airs every Sunday evening from 6:00 to 7:00 p.m. (Shows are rebroadcast the following Saturday morning at 6:00 a.m.) For more information about these or upcoming programs please call one of the Town Hall producers: Frank Mungeam, Alison Highberger or Liza McQuade at 231-4620.

Don't Drink and Dive

Don't drink and dive: That's the message from the National Spa & Pool Institute (NSPI), which reports that half of all serious recreational diving injuries happen when the diver has been drinking. The probability of an injury or accident increases with each and every ounce of alcohol consumed.

Sex Offenders Should be Tracked, Supervised

The Governor's Task Force on Sex Offenses Against Children has recommended that those convicted be required to register with the state for the rest of their life. Support has also been given to a Corrections Task Force recommendation that convicted sex offenders be directly supervised for up to 20 years.

Covering many changes in both the law and administrative rules, the proposals are part of the Task Force report to Governor Neil Goldschmidt. He formally received the document today from Kevin W. Concannon, director of the Oregon Department of Human Resources. The Governor directed Concannon to appoint the special study group.

"We believe our multi-faceted suggestions for change," said Concannon, "will advance the cause of protecting children. But we want to know what Oregonians think." The Governor has asked Concannon to pursue that objective in a series of public meetings across the State. Details are not complete, but the hearings will likely be held in late September.

Other recommendations in the report:

*Fund programs to provide treatment to victims of sex offenders.

*Empower judges to verbally order adults who pose threats out of the homes of children on an emergency basis.

*Establish a certification system for providers of sex abuse treatment.

*Increase access to Victim's Compensation.

*Improve restitution programs for victims.

*Require educational programs at all levels on the issue of sex abuse.

*Carry out a massive public education program.

"These recommendations cover a substantial amount of territory," acknowledged Concannon, "and they cannot all be implemented immediately." After hearing from Oregonians, the Task Force will incorporate the public viewpoint in a report that will ultimately be offered to lawmakers for further consideration.

Governor Neil Goldschmidt asked for the Sex Offenses Against Children study to develop legislative proposals. The group met eight times over a period of thirteen weeks. It heard from victims, providers of services, and the public.

New Telephone Service Features "Opening Lines"

It's a problem that has plagued men for years. It usually happens at bars and parties and can turn a confident, articulate man into a blubbing idiot.

We're speaking, of course, about the all-important "opening line." Some never work up the courage to say anything, but most men rely on the old unoriginal lines like "What's a nice girl like you doing in a place like this?" or "Don't I know you from somewhere?"

But now, thanks to St. Pauli Girl Beer, men who want to break the ice with fetching females won't have to resort to these tired, old stand-bys any longer. For a mere 85 cents, anyone can dial 1-900-990-MTRG (that's for Meet The Right Girl), a new telephone service that provides witty opening lines.

The service is accessible from all 50 states, and since there's no telling when a man might need a good opener, the service is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. A new one-minute message is offered each week and each message is delivered by Felice, this year's St. Pauli Girl Beer poster girl.

Let's face it, unless you're Tom Cruise or Paul Newman, you could use a good opener.

When female elephants fight, it is said, they usually try to bite off each other's tail.
