Showing Compassion At Christmas

Ulysses Tucker, Jr., Portland Observer columnist/television producer for KATU-TV 2 and Lavern Davis present Christmas gifts to a surprised group of students. The money for the gifts was made possible by "Friends of Ulysses", who wanted to help needy families but remain unidentified. Tucker and Davis, the principal at Martin Luther King Elementary School, purchased ten toys, five coats, and two Safeway gift certificates for the families in need. Standing in the back row are (from the left) Max Dizer (King), Michael Loop (Tubamn), and Joshua Loop (King). Front row: Hennisha "T" Dizer (King) and Patrick Loop (King). Not all of the students were able to attend the spontaneous gathering held at King School, but Davis hand delivered them later that day.
