Ride Tri-Met Free

All Tri-Met rides are free after 6 p.m. on New Year's Eve as a reminder that Tri-Met is a safe alternative to drinking and driving all year long. In addition, extra late-night service will be added to several major bus lines and MAX, in hopes that even more people will celebrate safely.

Those celebrating the new year should note that the last buses of the night will leave the Portland Mall at 2:32 a.m. The last MAX train will leave Pioneer Courthouse Square at 2:36 a.m. Special, late-night buses will be added on these Tri-Met lines:

- 5-Hawthorne, to Foster and 96th
- 5-Interstate, to Vancouver
- 9-Broadway, to Saratoga and 27th
- 9-Powell, to Powell and 98th Avenue
- 12-Barbur Blvd., to Tigard Transit Center

- 12-Sandy Blvd., to Sandy and 95th
- 15-Mt. Tabor, to Gateway Transit Center
- 15-N.W. 23rd Avenue, to Montgomery Park
- 57-Forest Grove, to Forest Grove

Most Tri-Met lines usually make their last trips at 11:32 p.m. or 12:32 a.m. on weekday nights. The later bus trips amount to more than 30 hours of extra Tri-Met service. But, as Tri-Met General Manager James E. Cowen said, "It's a small price to pay if we save some lives that night."

The 60 Tri-Met drivers who spend New Year's on the road will be wearing "No Thanks, I'm Driving" buttons to signify drug-and alcohol-free celebrations. And throughout the holidays, all Tri-Met buses will sport red ribbons as part of Mothers Against Drunk Driving's "Tie One On For Safety" campaign.

Needy Families Receive Christmas Hams Through Generous Donation From Safeway and Hormel

Some needy Portland families will receive extra holiday cheer in their Christmas baskets this season. Safeway, Inc. and Hormel have donated 90 Hormel Cure 81 hams to Oregon Food Bank. OFB will distribute the hams to several agencies serving individuals and families in North and Northeast Portland on Friday, December 21st, 10:00 a.m. at the Oregon Food Bank Warehouse (2540 N.E. Riverside Way). OFB member agencies receiving the hams include Good Samaritan Center, LIFE Center, Northeast Emergency Food Program and New Hope Missionary Baptist Church.

Safeway asked Oregon Food Bank to distribute the hams to agencies in the city's area of greatest need. The joint donation of hams from Safeway and Hormel represents a $1,350 value. Safeway recently held its ninth annual Supermarket Saturday to benefit Oregon Food Bank network agencies, raising over 200,000 pounds of food and $16,000.

"Safeway is committed to assisting those who are less fortunate in our community," said Bridget Flanagan, Safeway's Public Affairs Manager. "We're proud to expand our efforts to help hungry people, and we're pleased to join Hormel in this effort to enhance the holiday season."
