Summer Wedding Vows

BY KATHRYN HALL BOGLE

When Evelyn D'Almeida of Lome, Togo and Russell Graham Jr. exchanged wedding vows recently at the First Presbyterian Church in downtown Portland, the bride said the vows in French, the language in which she is most fluent.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by Dr. Alvin Graham who stood by to give her hand to his son waiting at the altar. The bride's ante-bellum styled gown was of brocaded white cotton with fitted wrist-length sleeves. Her headdress was a short veiling of tulle accented with orchids. She carried a mixed bouquet of lilies and roses, and wore a single strand of pearls at her throat.

Vows were heard by the Rev. William Creavey and were witnessed by about 200 guests invited by Dr. and Mrs. Alvin Graham. Carlos Graham acted as best man for his brother.

Lighting altar candles at the afternoon ceremony were bridesmaids Jennifer Bales of Portland, Jennifer Graham, a cousin of the bridegroom from Dayton, Ohio, and Dr. Courtney Graham, sister to the bridegroom. The bridesmaids wore pretty summer dresses of sheer flowered fabric and brimmed aqua straw hats. They carried hand bouquets of roses and small flowers. Among the groomsmen, who were all wearing formal black and gray attire, were John Marshall and Jeffrey Watson. Robbie Kile was soloist.

At a reception at the Southwest home of Dr. and Mrs. Graham, guests enjoyed a buffet of African foods as well as American goodies served in the dining room. Many ate outside on the deck or took a table set up under a huge white-canopied tent in the gardens. African drums and live music by an African troupe entertained during the late afternoon.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Dorothea Melvin of Baltimore, grandmother of the bridegroom, and Eric Clinksdale of Dayton, Ohio.

Honeymoon for the newlyweds will be travel to other parts of the United States to acquaint the bride with her new country. The couple met in Togo during a Europe and Africa tour by Russell Graham, a violinist and composer. He is a graduate of the Berklee School of Music in Boston and is a teacher of classical, popular or jazz styles of music. After the honeymoon travel, the couple will be at home in Washington, D.C.
