

Commissioner Bogle
Applauds Proposed
Civil Rights Ordinance

City Commissioner Dick Bogle took a strong stand on behalf of welfare mothers, the elderly and other public assistance recipients at last week's (Sept. 25) City Council hearing on Portland's proposed Civil Rights Ordinance.

"There can be no equality as long as individuals are barred from housing they can afford, simply because they depend for their incomes on some form of public assistance," Bogle said, referring to language in the ordinance which prohibits landlords from refusing to rent because of a tenant's source of income.

The ordinance, which is expected to be approved at the City Council hearing on October 2, bans discrimination in housing, employment and public accommodations based on race, religion, color, sex, marital status, familial status, national origin, age, disability, source of income or sexual orientation.

All but the latter two categories are protected under state and federal laws.

Stressing the need for the source of income provision, Bogle told of people he knows "who are filled with an 'only-in-America' sense of pride when they hear of a welfare child who's attained greatness in his or her life."

He termed this feeling "after-the-fact" pride. "What is needed is Before-the-fact caring, which can come only with during-the-fact access to clean and decent housing," Bogle concluded.

The city's first comprehensive Civil Rights Ordinance was introduced by Commissioner Mike Lindberg and co-sponsored by Bogle, Commissioners Kafoury and Blumenauer, and Mayor Clark.

Meet The Lenders Conference

Do you and your lender speak the same language? Here is an opportunity for business owners to hear from those who make loans to small businesses. This conference will help clarify the lender's language and the way lenders determine which ventures are eligible for funding.

You will be guided through the debt and equity financing steps and shown how to understand financial statements and develop a well-defined business plan. Presentations will include information about financing methods like the City of Eugene Business Development Fund, Federal SBA Loans, bank loans, and less-well-known capital resources such as the Northwest Capital Network.

The workshop will be held Thursday, October 10, at the Eugene Hilton Conference Center from 8:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Registration is $35 and can be made by sending your check to the Small Business Development Center, Lane Community College, 1059 Wilamette Street, Eugene, OR 97401-3171. PASS THIS SIMPLE TEST, AND
YOU'VE JUST ABOUT
QUALIFIED FOR A LOAN FROM US.

1. Do you really need the money? YES NO
2. Do you have a good history of paying your bills? YES NO
3. Do you have a steady income? YES NO

If you answered yes to those questions up there, you should talk to us about a loan.

No kidding.

You see, we've come up with something called The Opportunity Loan. It's a more flexible version of the regular way we lend money.

Of course, we're still a bank. And banks have to say legal stuff like we're an equal opportunity lender, member FDIC. And, we can't actually promise you the money in this ad.

But, if you call or come fill out an application, your odds of getting the money you need go up considerably.
