Position Announcement

Black Studies Department - Portland State University
Portland, Oregon

Assistant Professor or Associate Professor In Black Studies

The Black Studies Department at Portland State University is seeking to hire an Assistant or Associate Professor for the 1992-93 school year on a tenure track appointment.

RESPONSIBILITIES: This individual will carry a regular load in an appropriate discipline area. They will also be expected to advise students and serve on department and university committees as appointed. Active community involvement is expected.

QUALIFICATIONS: Earned doctorate in an appropriate field is preferred. Candidates in the final stage of completion of the doctoral degree will be considered. A record of, or strong potential for, scholarly activity is desired. Evidence of successful university level teaching in Black Studies or closely related disciplines is important. Demonstrated commitment to effective community involvement is also required. Individuals with multidisciplinary backgrounds who are able to provide instruction in more than one area of the Black experience are sociology, economics, geography and/or political science. However other disciplines will be considered. Specialization in the Caribbean Black experience will be particularly helpful, but is not a requirement for hire. Specialists in Africa and in the African-American experience are also encouraged to apply.

APPOINTMENT: At the Assistant Professor or Associate Professor (dependent on professional achievements) level, nine month tenure track position.

SALARY: Dependent upon qualifications and experience.

EFFECTIVE DATE: September 16, 1992

The Committee will begin reviewing applications after January 15, 1992. Candidates are urged to submit all materials by that time, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

CONTACT: Candice Goucher - Chair, Search Committee, Black Studies Department - Portland State University, PO Box 751 - Portland, OR 97207, (503) 725-3052.

TO APPLY: Submit: 1) detailed letter of application outlining past relevant experiences, 2) resume/vita; 3) names of three (3) references. Supporting materials, such as examples of scholarly publications, course syllabi, etc., are also welcome. Transcripts and other supporting documents may be requested for finalists.

Portland State is a university with a mission to serve a metropolitan urban community and a commitment to incorporate a diverse global perspective in higher education.
