

Religion and Heart to Heart Heart to Heart

We Must Have Bible Authority
By Gregory Fobbs

by John Dudley Leftridge III

"The word that I spake shall judge him in the last day." (John 12:48). When Jesus uttered these words he forever settled the question of Authority in religion. Regardless of race, creed or ethnic origin every man on earth is subject to the authority of Christ, he may not know it, he may not accept it or he may not want it, but irrespective of this, it still is true. If Jesus word is the basis for judgement as the above passage affirms, then it does become the supreme authority in religion. The Bible clearly and unequivocally claims for itself authority in religion, (John 12:48, Colossians 3:17).

Let me define the term "authority". Webster defines authority as, Power of right to command or act; dominion; control; etc. Jesus also said, "the scripture cannot be broken," which means, repeal, annul, or abolish. Therefore, the Bible's authority cannot be denied or rejected.

Down through the ages great men have accepted the divine authority of the Bible in religion. Paul said, "and whatsoever you do, in word or in deed do all in the name of the Lord Jesus (Colossians 3:17). This passage alone establishes the absolute need for authority in religion.

The human existence has been so grossly distorted, that we no longer are able to reach true self-development in a normal systematic process.

The founding fathers and mothers of civilization instituted a process for all human beings to live in harmony with nature and acquire universal enlightenment by gaining wisdom, understanding, mercy, love, peace, unity, and patience through the total development of the four natural points of nature: Air, Fire, Water, and Earth, theses relate to the body as Thymus, Adrenal, Lyden, Gonads. These glands are directly responsible to the 24 cranial nerves that lead to the five senses of sight, sound, taste, smell, and touch. To tune in on this process one must be familiar with the seven levels of intelligence and how to use all eight brain lobes to their fullest capacity; at present seven of these brain lobes lay dormant.

The above mentioned is how the great people of Africa first introduced civilized living to the universal stage, only to have it stolen and hidden from their offspring. However, there is a way back to the good graces of righteousness through selfawareness. We must reach in to the well of history and rediscover who we really are and not be so afraid or ashamed of the experiences that life has forced us to endure. Because it is these experiences that has helped us build the strong character of never giving up the hunt for freedom from physical bondage.

I say to my people that the fight we endured through physical bondage was extremely easy one, it only took 200 or so years.

The good fight is at hand, the fight to free us from mental bondage, that the religous instituions, the educational institutions, and the total european doctrine has placed us in, is a much harder task. We refuse to stand together united as one for the good of the overall Black Nation. We would rather allow someone else to establish our thinking patterns to reflect their images, instead of our own. Why are we afraid to be a black strong nation? Every culture on the face of this green earth will live within their traditions; we will not even learn ours, let alone live them! Every culture will speak their own language, we will make excuses so we can remain in the images of our former slave masters. Think about it for a moment or two!

You and I are just where these people want us, where we sound just like his boy. But we can put a stop to that kind of thinking. When you start to use your own native African tongue, you start to identify with your own traditions, culture, and background as a people. Which means you are no longer his boy. Therefore, take the shackles off your mind and move freely within the knowledge and language of your own native history, traditions, culture, and language of kiswahili.
