Each OES student brings a different perspective.

Thank goodness.

OES students go off to some of the nation's finest colleges and universities with academic confidence and cross-cultural friendships.

Getting rid of the "isms" — racism, sexism, classism — is something we take seriously at Oregon Episcopal School. We celebrate diversity and respect for the individual. This goes hand-in-hand with our demanding college preparatory curriculum, small classes and individual attention.

Founded in 1869, OES is an independent, college preparatory school located on a 59-acre campus in Portland's southwest hills for students in preschool through high school with day and boarding students in grades 9 through 12.
