Melissa Fern

Melissa Fern has been a waitress; a truck driver; has worked at a fast food place. In a foundry job, she knocked molds out of steel frames with a sledgehammer.

Now she's going in a different direction - toward a doctorate in clinical psychology. She intends to have her own practice and has definite ideas about providing affordable care.

Melissa came to PCC Cascade for the first two years of her bachelor's degree. It gave her a good start. "The instructors were very supportive," she says. "They were willing to put out extra effort to help me."

"I can say I've never been anywhere where so many different kinds of people get along so well."
