Portland Ad 2 Chooses Neighborhood Health Clinics As Client

Portland Ad 2 announced today that Neighborhood Health Clinics have been selected to receive a year of free advertising services from its Public Service committee.

Each year, Ad 2 (an association of advertising professionals under the age of 31), selects a client for which a complete advertising and public relations campaign is produced. Ad 2 members volunteer the expertise to create the campaign, and local vendors often donate their production services.

Over 40 non-profit organizations applied for the service. Neighborhood Health Clinics, an organization of volunteers offering free medical services to the un- or under-insured, was selected because of their significant contributions to the community and their mission.

The clinics hope to increase their base of volunteers from the medical community as well as bolster their name recognition and image in Portland.

Portland Ad 2 has won national awards from the American Advertising Federation for several past public service campaigns, including one just completed for the Boys and Girls Clubs of Portland. Recent clients have also included the Environmental Federation of Oregon and the Burnside Community Council.

Portland Ad 2 is affiliated with the Portland Advertising Federation and the American Advertising Federation.
