Procter & Gamble Gives To

(To Educate Children About Racism)

Procter & Gamble Chairman and Chief Executive Edwin L. Artzt, announced a major gift of $500,000 from the P & G Fund to help underwrite the Children's Campaign of the Leadership Conference Education Fund (LCEF). The Children's Campaign is an educational program to help children develop racial understanding and value diversity. Mrs. Corretta Scott King, founding president and chief executive officer, The Martin Luther King, Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change; Mr. Jesse Hill, chairman of the board of directors of The King Center, and Mr. Artzt have agreed to serve as principal advisors to the Children's Campaign. Plans for the Children's Campaign involve a multifaceted education.

Local Student(s) Active With Whitman

Bethany Brewer

At least one student from your area is active this semester with the Whitman College Black Student Union group, either as an officer or member.

Bethany Brewer, a junior sociology major at Whitman and the daughter of Gwendolyn Y. Brewer, Portland, Ore., is serving as chairperson of the Black Student Union's Black History Month organizing committee. She is a 1990 graduate of Saint Marys Academy, Portland.

Anya Corbitt, a Whitman sophomore and the daughter of Paula J. Corbitt, Albany, Ore., is serving as treasurer of Whitman's Black Student Union. She is a 1991 graduate of West Albany High School, Albany.

Adrina Tarver, a Whitman sophomore and the daughter of James and Parthenia Tarver, Portland, is serving as secretary of Whitman's Black Student Union and as a member of the Black History Month organizing committee. She is a 1991 graduate of Catlin Gabel School, Portland.

"We want to stand out; we want other people on campus to know there is a Black Student Union and that we are active," said LaTrice Wilkins, a freshman from Paso Robles, Calif., who serves as president of the group.

"We're proud of our culture and we want others to know about us," added Marcy Banks, a sophomore from Bremerton, Wash., who serves as vice president. "It's so important at this point in our lives to learn not only the academics but to learn to live with different kinds of people. We need to have as much diversity on campus as possible."

Kamala Patton, a sophomore from Seattle, Wash., said the group hopes to play a part in attracting more minority students to campus in the years ahead. "We need more colors, more diversity. And if you're living here on campus, you can't crawl into a corner and hide. You have to learn about other people. That's very enriching."

Whitman, a private, independent liberal arts and sciences college of 1,200 students, is the oldest chartered institution of higher education in the state of Washington.

Dr. Carolyn Reedom Visits Portland Public Schools

Dr. Reedom spent the week of February 1st - 5th talking to the parents and teachers from Cleveland and Grant Cluster Schools. Rosemary Daniels (left) Rachel Dabutz (parent) and Dr. Reedom (right).

The day at Brooklyn was spent on "Ways to Encourage Children to do Homework" and "When You Have Tried Everything Then What?"

Dr. Reedom shared many ideas and always from a positive point of view. Her closing comment was we must keep trying but don't give up.

Tutoring Program

The Oasis Program funded by Meir & Frank and sponsored by Legacy Health Systems is located at 1710 N. Humboldt. You are invited to attend the young adults and older adults program launching on Wednesday, Feb. 17, 1993, at 10:00am. If you are 60 or older, retired or semi-retired, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of Multnomah County offers diverse opportunities for you from an endless and varied list. You can determine how many hours you can give, where and when you wish to serve. The following are some of the openings available:

"Who needs a bank that's got you running around in circles?"

We switched to B of A for clear, direct answers and very personal service. When someone buys a bike from us, they get more than a frame, some components, and a couple of tires. They get advice and personal attention. It should be the same with a bank. Checking, loans, lines of credit are great -- but what I really want is the kind of flexibility that comes from dealing with people who know who you are."

—Derk Pauwels, Kissler's Cyclery

No one wants to do business with a stranger. That's why at Bank of America, we go out of our way to get to know your business. Every Bank of America, from Astoria to Klamath Falls, has a business banker right there in the branch.
