Several organizations in North and Northeast Portland were presented with Awards of Excellence at United Way of the Columbia-Willamette's recent Night of the Stars Awards Dinner.

Emanuel Hospital and Health Center was honored with a Hospital Award for the Highest Percent of Increase. This is a traveling award that goes from hospital to hospital throughout the region. Tom Parker, administrative associate for Legacy Portland Hospitals, is pictured accepting the award from Shirley Hancock, KOIN.

Portland Public Schools received a One Hundred Thousand Dollar Award for raising more than $100,000 last year. The Portland Public Schools-Director of Finance Office picked up a Highest Per Capita award for the government and education region.

The Portland Observer received an Outstanding Media Contribution for Feature Coverage award for its coverage of United Way in 1992. Articles appeared on the need for more people to volunteer for specific tasks, workshops that the organization co-sponsored, and various campaign events. Chuck Washington, public relation manager, is pictured accepting the award from Tracy Barry, KGW.

The Northeast Coalition of Neighborhoods collected an Outstanding Agency Presentation award for giving 33 presentations during Campaign '92.

The American Red Cross-Oregon Trail Chapter also received an agency presentation award, for giving 31 presentations during Campaign '92. Additionally, the chapter received a Loaned Executive/Corporate Support award for supplying United Way with loaned executives for the last five years. Jill Nichols, executive director, is pictured accepting these awards from Dana Garrett, creator and co-host of the national PBS series, "The Collectors."

Nichols also collected an individual award for her contributions to the 1992 Campaign Cabinet as the member in charge of agency participation. She accepts her award from Jeff Gianola, KATU.

Oregonian columnist Jonathan Nicholas, who served as the event's master of ceremonies, told the crowd of 550, "Your assistance is invaluable and appreciated more than you will ever know by people you may never meet."
