PCC's Cascade Campus Invitation

In an effort to shine the spotlight on the latest in technology, on quality instruction, and on the friendly atmosphere at PCC's Cascade Campus, the staff will hold an open house to invite the public to come and look firsthand at medical and office training programs.

An open house for the PCC Cascade Campus Business Technology and Medical Technology programs is scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 3, from 5 to 6:30pm, Terrell Hall, Room 122, 705 N. Killingsworth. Brief presentations from successful graduates, lab tours, refreshments, and the chance to inquire about specific programs from instructors and admissions staff are included. There will be free parking in the lot north of Terrell Hall.

At the open house, you can find out about a career as an administrative assistant or office support assistant, an optician, a medical lab technician, a medical assistant, an ophthalmic medical technician, a medical records technician or a drug and alcohol counselor.

"We especially hope to introduce parents of high school students to our programs," said Business and Technology Dean Sonya McDowell.

"We want people to know how successful our graduates are and where they've gone since PCC," added Joan Hayward, who is the department chair of the Medical Technology programs.

PCC graduates giving talks include northeast Portland resident Cecilia Mitchell, who received a two-year degree in business technology and works for the Trail Blazers; and Medical laboratory technology graduate Debra Penfield who lives in northwest Portland and works for the Clackamas Oncology Clinic.

For more information, please contact Joan Hayward at 244-6111, ext. 5660, Sonya McDowell at ext. 5235, or Cascade Campus counselor Carl Parker, who is coordinating the open house, at ext. 5284.
