Child Sexual Abuse

In recent years, media accounts of children who have been sexually molested have intensified. In many cases, adults who were victimized as children have spoken up to tell horrendous stories of sexual abuse that they were forced to endure while growing up. Often these cases involve children who were molested by respected members of the community noted for exemplary devotion to helping others. Sometimes the offenders are employees of churches, associations and schools that have the responsibility for the safety of the children in their care.

The elimination and reduction of this abuse is the responsibility of every adult who comes into contact with children. Parents and educators should familiarize themselves with the most current information about sexual abuse to develop and implement effective prevention and early intervention strategies.
