Workforce Investment Grants Announced

The Regional Workforce Quality Committee, Region 2 (Multnomah and Washington Counties), is pleased to announce the award of $900,000 by the State of Oregon in Workforce Investment Funds to carry out employment programs and workforce strategies in the region. Jim Harper of Wacker Siltronic, Chair of the Regional Committee, said "this funding will be very helpful in making the workers and industries of our region more competitive in the national and world economy."

For this region, projects were chosen in a competitive process to carry out the State goals of developing regional strategies to serve dislocated workers, provide professional/technical education to residents of the region, and to increase the skills of existing workers.

Projects will include an effort by the city of Portland and The Private Industry Council to reach out to residents of North and Northeast Portland, including at-risk and gang-affected youth, to provide training and employment services; the start-up of a one-stop center in Washington County to serve dislocated workers; a project to provide school-to-work transition programs to high school students in the region; and a partnership with private industry to rain the existing workforce.

Applications Available For $9,000 In Accounting Scholarships

Applications are available now for an estimated $9,000 in scholarships to be awarded for use during the 1994-95 school year by the Oregon Association of Public Accountants Scholarship Foundation.

Awards will go to Oregon residents enrolled in accounting studies at Oregon colleges or universities according to Robert L. Gorden, Bend, Foundation chairman.

Scholarship applications are now in the hands of high school counselors and community college, college and university financial aid officers throughout the state. Interested students can also obtain application forms by writing directly to Gordon at 61365 Ward Road, Bend, Or 97702, enclosing a business-size stamped self-addressed envelope. Deadline for applications is April 1, 1994. Names of successful applicants will be announced by June 1, 1994.

Individual scholarships will range from $500 to $1,000 and are restricted to Oregon residents enrolled as full-time students in Oregon institutions for higher education. Award winners are selected on a basis of financial need, scholastic achievement, personal qualifications and professional promise.

The Scholarship Foundation was established by the Oregon Association of Public Accountants in 1981 and since then has awarded almost $90,000 in scholarships to Oregon students. Annual awards vary, depending upon income from trust funds established by the Oregon Association of Independent Accountants (formerly OAPA). Members of the Foundation board of directors include, in addition to the chairman, Robert Boden, Portland; Gail DeLozier, Hillsboro, secretary-treasurer; Richard L. Garlock, Portland; Vera Perisol, Portland.

Low-Cost VisionCare & Free Vision Screenings

For Inner-City Residents

Residents of North/Northeast Portland have access to low-cost vision care and free vision screenings through the Pacific University Cascade Campus Family Vision Center.

Located across the street from the Portland Community College Cascade Campus (600 N. Killingsworth), the Cascade Campus Family Vision Center provides complete vision examinations and eyewear dispensary services according to family and individual income. Patients can receive a thorough vision exam and prescription eye-glasses at very affordable fees, depending on income.

We also provide free vision screenings for children and adults of all ages. Screenings do not take the place of a complete vision exam but do provide important vision information. Screenings are particularly helpful for children whose learning ability depends on good vision. For more information about scheduling, services, and fees, please call 240-5319.

EOMA Offers Scholarship For Mining Industry Students

The Eastern Oregon Mining Association is once again accepting scholarship applications from upper level students interested in careers in the mineral resources industry.

Each year EOMA awards a $500 cash scholarship to an Oregon resident in his or her junior year or higher. To apply, students need only send a letter requesting the grant and explaining education and career goals.

To qualify, students should be majoring in geology, geological engineering, metallurgy, metallurgical engineering, mining engineering or a field directly related to mineral recovery such as mining economics.

Students also should be willing to attend one monthly meeting of the association to explain what he or she is learning as a result of the scholarship.

Letters of application for the 1994 scholarship should be addressed to the Eastern Oregon Mining Association, PO Box 932, Baker City OR 97814. An Award will be made early in 1994.

BOORA Establishes Architecture Scholarship For Minority Student At University Of Oregon

BOORA Architects has established a scholarship program at the University of Oregon to provide financial assistance to a promising minority student committed to pursuing a career in Architecture.

The firm will provide an annual award to cover all tuition expenses for up to five years to a minority student who both demonstrates promise in architecture and has financial need in addition to the scholarship. BOORA will offer the award recipient opportunity for summer employment during at least one of the five years of schooling. While enrolled, the awardee may also request an internship at the BOORA office.

"As one of Oregon's largest architecture firms, we feel that we have a responsibility to serve future generations of architects in our state," said Dennis O'Toole, AIA, Managing Partner of BOORA. "We chose to support a minority student to reinforce our belief that the field of architecture should encourage students from all ethnic and economic backgrounds."

The BOORA Minority Student Scholarship, which will be awarded first for the 1994-95 school year, will be open to minority students who have either applied to, or been admitted by, the Department of Architecture at the University of Oregon. Application must demonstrate promise in architect through letters of reference, transcripts, test scores and portfolio work. In addition to having minority status, eligible students must also be a citizen of the United States of America, have resided in Oregon for at least two years, and be eligible for financial aid.

The award recipients' work will be evaluated annually as he or she progresses toward a Bachelor's degree in Architect. Continuation of the award on a year-to-year basis will be subject to successful completion of coursework.

"this scholarship will be a very significant boost to minority students who have demonstrated talent and commitment to architecture, but who might be prevented from pursuing their goals because of financial need," said Mike Utsey, Head of the Department of Architecture at the University of Oregon.

Jerry V. Finrow, AIA, Dean of the School of Architecture and Allied Arts, commented, "Gifts such as the BOORA Minority Scholarship help the University of Oregon achieve its goal to expand cultural diversity on campus. This gift serves as a prime example of the value and impact private donations can have on our School and the education of students for the future."

O'Toole added, "One of the things BOORA looks forward to most is the opportunity to establish long-term relationships with the scholarship recipients. We hope that in addition to getting a fine education in architecture at the University of Oregon, students will have the chance to become familiar with the hands-on realities of the field through association with our office."

Established in 1958, BOORA Architects is an award-winning architecture, planning and interior design firm providing a broad range of services to educational, cultural, governmental, health care and commercial clients.
