Song And Dance Act Set Friday, April 8 At Bagley Center

The City of Vancouver Parks and Recreation Department's citizens of Disability program will be the host for the PHAME Academy recital on Friday evening, April 8, from 7-9 p.m. at Bagley Center, 4100 Plomondon.

PHAME (Physically Handicapped Actors and Musical Entertainers) is a non-profit organization, based in Portland.

This talented group of over 30 children and adults with developmental disabilities will perform a variety of entertainment including a choral performance and solos, excerpts from their latest musical and a variety of dance acts. Two local teenagers, Jason Marick and Polly Loudermilk, perform in the recital.

Suggested donation for this event is $2 per person, payable the evening of the performance.

PHAME Academy will offer classes in the fall through the Vancouver Parks and Recreation Department. For additional information on the performance or upcoming classes, call 696-8218.
