

Shark Products Presents Record Collection

An original Marion Anderson four record collection is presented to the newly named Marion Anderson Theatre at Aaron Davis Hall in New York City by executives and board members from Shark Products, makers of African Pride hair-care products, (from left) Leslie M. Corley, Adriane Gaines, Les Edwards and Brian Marks.

Using Music To Stress Aids Education

Rhythm and blues superstar Melba Moore dazzles an audience with her rendition of "Lift Every Voice and Sing" as 350 gospel singers raise their voices for the cause of raising money for people living with HIV/AIDS. Health Partners, a managed care company for Medicaid recipients, sponsored and funded the GospelAid concert in Philadelphia. Education and routine health care to prevent the spread of AIDS within the African-American community was stressed.

Steve James Returns To Music Millennium

On the occasion of the release of his second album for the Austin, Texas-based Antone's Records, American Primitive, Steve James will return to Portland. James gave an in-store performance at Music Millennium's eastside store in September last year, showcasing his interpretation of the blues.

James returns to the Northwest to perform solo at the Cascade Blues Association's Acoustic Blues Festival on June 25th and to play with Terry Robb at Key Largo on June 27th. Additionally, Music Millennium has the pleasure of announcing a return visit by Steve James to its 32nd and East Burnside location.

James will play a short set on the stage beginning at 5:00pm on Monday, June 27th.

American Primitive combines James' renditions of blues classics with some of his original compositions. Whatever the tune, you're bound to find Steve James a refreshing talent. Steve's Music Millennium in-store appearance is free and open to the public.
