Local Scouts Begin Fundraising

local troop 373 boyscouts raise funds with a carwash

Local Boy Scout Troop 373 began their fundraising campaign this summer for a planned outing to California. The scouts who are elementary and middle school students hope to travel to California to widen their horizons, experience uplifting things and become better scouts and citizens. The scouts are not content with just asking parents and other adults for money, they worked very hard this summer at a car wash at the Burger King restaurant on Weidler. Many more fundraising events are planned and the scouts hope the entire community will support them in their constructive efforts.

The Troop is headed by Aleem Shabazz and Anthony O'Neil. During the car wash the scouts were supported by volunteers Herman Brame, Fareeda Muhammad, and Ali Muhammad. The troop was chartered through the efforts of members of the Muslim Community Center of Portland which is headed by Imam Mikal Shabazz.

Students Work With OHSU Scientists

The Center for Research on Occupational and Environmental Toxicology (CROET) at Oregon Health Sciences University opened its laboratories for three local high school students to gain hands-on experience studying the biomedical effects of toxins. OHSU hosted an eight week Saturday Academy program called Apprenticeships in Science and Engineering spanning from June 20 through Aug. 26. Faculty members guided the work of these students currently under-represented in the field of science.

The 1994 Saturday Academy participants: Hans Tritico of Beaverton High School participated in a study with CROET scientist Dr. Glen Kisby on toxins and the mechanisms that cause damage to DNA.

Rebecca Dean of Grant Union High School assisted CROET scientist Dr. Mohammed Sabri in his research to determine if environmental toxins affect the brain's nerve cell degeneration.

Matt Nelson of Lakeridge High School worked with CROET scientist Dr. Dwijendra Roy in isolating toxins in plants.

But now, at least their health care costs can be controlled.

Sound the trumpets, beat the drums: Someone has finally come up with affordable healthcare coverage for your children. Like a rate of just $29.50 per kid, per month. Best of all, that someone is Blue Cross Blue Shield of Oregon, the largest, most respected name in the business. What we've done is base premiums strictly on the average medical expenses and needs of kids, unlike most programs. We've also formed an alliance with the 80 affiliated physicians of Legacy Emanuel Children's Hospital. For details, contact your local independent insurance agent or call 1-800-762-4831 or 225-4910. But don't put it off. The only thing predictable about kids is their unpredictability.
