Wilshire Park Grocery Offers Free Bus Rides To Customers

When Wilshire Park Thriftway closed August 19, buses shuttled customers free of charge to nearby United Grocers.

United Grocers spokesperson Dave Isom said the buses are being offered as a courtesy to customers to thank them for their previous business and to encourage them to come back when a new store is built and opened on an unspecified date.

Passengers will be picked up at the current store site, 5400 N.E. 33 Ave., and taken to either T.J. Sentry, 4636 N.E. 42 Ave., or E&M Community Market, 900 N. Killingsworth.

Buses will run Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday between 9:30 and 10:30 a.m., 12:30 and 1:30 p.m., and 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. The 9:30 and 12:30 buses are 15-passenger handicapped accessible vans. The 5:30 bus will hold 35 passengers. Passengers will be dropped back at the Wilshire Park parking lot within an hour of being picked up to go shopping.

The buses will run indefinitely, depending upon the number of riders.

Minority Enrollment Up

The number of women and minorities is growing at the University of Oregon School of Law, Eugene, reflecting a focus on excellence, according to Dean Chuck O'Kelley. In its second week of classes, the law school's first-year class is comprised of 55 percent women and 16 percent minority students, a three percent hike from last year.

In addition, the law school is attracting students with higher grade point averages and LSAT scores. In addition, the law school is attracting students with higher grade point averages and LSAT scores.

"We're attracting a higher caliber of student in large part due to our focus on excellence, gender equity and diversity," said O'Kelley. "Our efforts to foster a sense of community and cooperation among students are clearly paying off."

Book Readings

The following will conduct readings at Powell's Books, 1005 W. Burnside, during September.

Christina Buchmann - Sept. 9

Editor Christina Buchmann collected literary essays from 28 writers, including Fay Weldon, Cynthia Ozick, Louise Erdrich, Ursula K. LeGuin and Elizabeth Swados to create her new anthology, Out of the Garden: Women Writers on the Bible, and she introduces the collection Friday, Sept. 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Lon Duquette - Sept. 11

Lon Duquette presents a talk on the magic of Aleister Crowley and reads from his new Crowley primer The Magick of Thelema: A Handbook of the Rituals of Aleister Crowley, in a special afternoon presentation Sunday, Sept. 11 at 4:30 p.m.

Banned Book Readings - Sept. 13

As parents, teachers, and citizens groups continue to challenge the freedom of written expression, the threat of censorship in America seems as prevalent today as it was when the St. Louis Public Library burned their copies of The Grapes of Wrath in 1939. More recent examples of censorship abound: Of Mice and Men, removed from all Knoxville public schools in 1984; Invisible Man, banned in Butler, Penn. in 1975; The Merchant of Venice, banned from classrooms in Midland, Mich., in 1980; and the Diary of Anne Frank, rejected for classroom use by the Alabama State Textbook Committee in 1983. For your enjoyment and to celebrate the achievements of great writers, we present a night of Banned Book Readings, Sept. 13 at 7:30 p.m., a presentation of selected excerpts from some of the best books we've ever read.

Greg Sarris - Sept. 14

"Being half white and half Indian, I've been between two worlds and privy to both and their stories," said Greg Sarris. "I know what they say about each other." Chief of the Coast Miwok tribe, Sarris grew up in Santa Rosa, Calif. and has named his new fiction collection for the street where he lived, Grand Avenue. With 10 linked stories, he paints a portrait of Native American life in an urban environment and tells his stories through a variety of narrators, young and old, who explain their lives in the cultural center of their town. Sarris reads from this new collection Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m.

Sara Lawrence-Lightfoot - Sept. 15

With her latest book, sociologist Sara Lawrence-Lightfoot employs her own form of human archaeology to dig into the lives of six African American men and women in middle age. I've Known Rivers: Lives of Loss and Liberation is the result of years of extensive interviews with her six subjects, a group experiences a transitional time of life, and looking backward as a way of anticipating the future. She reads from this new book, and discusses the project, Sept. 15 at 7:30 p.m.

Jill Ker Conway - Sept 17

A historian who specializes in the experience of women in America, Jill Ker Conway has studied women's autobiographies extensively and written a book on the subject. But few American memoirs have received as much acclaim as her own, The Road From Coorain, a chronicle of her childhood on an Australian sheep farm that became an enormous bestseller when it was published in 1989. Conway now continues her life story with True North, a memoir that picks up where Road From Coorain left off, including the years she spent as president of Smith College. She reads from the book, Sept. 17 at 7:30 p.m.
