Lewis was knocked down 31 seconds into the second round by left hook and a right hand. he struggle up to his feet on the 6 count but appeared wobbly and daze when the referee stopped the

Wilson Gears It Up A Notch

The battle of two undefeated teams had the Lincoln Cardinals throwing a scare into top ranked Wilson.

Lincoln quarterback Dan Roth brought Cardinals back from 14-0 down with his passing and running.

Roth second touchdown pass a 10 yarder to Chris Swain brought Lincoln within eight points 21-13 with three minutes remaining in the 3rd quarter.

But inevitably it was Wilson who persevered and pulled out a 35-13 win.

Teens & Company: New, Improved And Expanded

Members of TEENS & COMPANY with Jerome Kersey

Teens & Company,

PPCW's award-winning teen theatre program, is celebrating its ninth season this fall. The program has been seen by over 100,000 teens throughout Oregon and Washington for nearly a decade. This year's group will be bigger and better than ever!

In an effort to reach more teens by performing more shows, while at the same time cutting down on cast members' absences from school, the number of teens in the program has been doubled. This year's 26 cast members will be divided into two casts of 13 each. Each cast will perform the same show, but at different locations, thus allowing us to increase the number of productions available to the community.

An exciting new component has been added to this successful peer education model: the teens will now be available to provide interactive group presentations to classrooms and community groups. This component will allow teachers and others who request talks on Birth Control, Sexual Decision making, STDs and AIDS, to select either an adult speaker or the fully trained teen educators. In addition, the teens will be available to make presentations, act as consultants and serve on teen panels.

Teens are selected to participate in TEENS & COMPANY through an audition process in the spring of each year.

Once selected, the cast spends over 180 hours of their summer months in intensive drama and sexuality education training. Through discussion and improvisational exercises, the teens decide which messages they feel are most important to convey to their peers. They then develop theatrical skits to communicate these messages through a dramatic performance. September is filled with hours of rehearsal time with professional theatre coaches. The show usually addresses the following issues:

- Peer Pressure
- Drug and Alcohol Abuse
- Depression and Suicide
- Birth Control Options
- Teen Pregnancy
- Eating disorders
- Sexual Orientation
- Sexually Transmitted Diseases
- HIV/AIDS

NIKE TOWN & FOX 49 KPDX TO HONOR AMATEUR ATHLETES OF THE MONTH

Sometimes just making the team is a bigger victory than tossing the winning touchdown or popping a three-pointer at the buzzer. Nike Town and Fox 49 KPDX have established the Amateur Athlete of the Month award to recognize the accomplishments of amateur athletes who make the most of their abilities, even though they may not be the "star" players.

"The headlines are full of the accomplishments of the region's top athletes," explained Scott Reames, Nike Town Events Coordinator. "They certainly deserve the recognition, but what about the kid who makes the final spot on the basketball team through sheer determination or the parent who has raised three kids and then decides to enter a first marathon? We believe these athletes deserve acknowledgement as well, which is why we created the Amateur Athlete of the Month."

Friends, teammates, coaches or family members of a potential nominee can pick up official nomination forms at Nike Town (930 S.W. Sixth Ave.) and submit it for consideration. Athletes of any age are eligible, but cannot nominate themselves. Deadline for entry the 25th of each month. No purchase necessary to nominate or be nominated. Official rules are outlined on the entry form.

Each month, one male and female athlete will be chosen from among the nomination forms received. In keeping with OSAA and WIAA athlete guidelines, no cash or merchandise will be awarded, but athletes will be featured on a display wall at Nike Town and included in television spots that will air on Fox 49.

Nomination forms will be available throughout the year at the events table at Nike Town. For more information, call (503) 221-6453.

DE LA HOYA DEFENDS TITLE AGAINST AVILA

"The Golden Boy" Oscar De La Hoya makes the first defense of his World Boxing Organization lightweight championship against current International Boxing Organization lightweight champion John Avila on Saturday, October 8 at the Grand Olympic Auditorium.

The 12-round bout tops a five-fight card presented by Top Rank that can be seen live on CBS at 5 p.m. ET/2 p.m. PT.

De La Hoya (14-0, 13 KOs) is the brightest young star in boxing today. Possessing incredible speed, size and strength for a lightweight, he has demolished every one in his path. Celebrating his move to the lightweight division in style, De La Hoya took only seconds in round two to annihilate former world champion Jorge Paez and capture his second world title.

The 21-year-old from East Los Angeles was the only Gold Medalist on the 1992 Olympic boxing team. He has made his professional debut on Nov. 23, 1992 at the Great Western Forum with a quick first-round knock out over Lamar Williams. Since his pro debut, he has destroyed all 13 opponents with only Mike Grable remaining on his feet. De La Hoya, who has his sights set on six world titles, hopes to have a showdown with fellow Californian and current IBF lightweight champion Rafael Reulas sometime next year.

YOUNG GOLFERS PLAY AND EARN

For the middle school students involved in Portland Parks & Recreation's KADDIES program, golf is much more than just fun and games for the older set. Through the program, young people are assigned to caddie for a specific golfer all through the season. In exchange, the young caddie earns spending money (between $10 and $20/week) and is encouraged to learn the game of golf. The program provides all caddies with golf lessons and basic golf equipment. But it is the relationships that are built between the young caddies and their assigned golfers that makes this program unique.

Standing for "Kids and Adults Developing Diversified Interests in Employment", the KADDIES program is first and foremost a mentoring program. Using the game of golf, KADDIES helps build self esteem, teaches responsibility, and introduces career options for the young people involved. Much like the successful Eagle Program for High School students, it is hoped that the KADDIES program will encourage young people from diverse ethnic groups to discover their own potential through the game of golf.

The Portland School District is committed to recruiting young people for the program. New this summer, the program involved 18 students. 30% of those students were minorities. It is anticipated that the numbers of participants will grow as school counselors learn about the program and as KADDIES proves itself. The mentors are recruited through the Police Athletic League and the Portland Parks & Recreation Golf Program. The Oregon Golf Association and the L.P.G.A. are involved in caddie training and assist with administration of the program.

Golfer/Mentors must play at least once/week. Once assigned a caddie, the golfer arranges golf dates and times directly with his or her caddie. The caddie is responsible for getting to the course on time and to do their job. At the end of the round, the golfer gives the caddie a voucher which can be redeemed from the concessionaire at the course. It all seems to work very well. The young people and their mentors involved in the KADDIES program this summer were very enthusiastic. KADDIES will continue as a pilot project through the fall. Eventually, program organizers hope students will stay involved for two years.

Young people or adults interested in learning more about the KADDIES program, or the EAGLE program for high school students, are encouraged to contact John Zoller, Golf Director, Portland Parks & Recreation - 1120 SW Fifth #1302, Portland, OR 97204 823-5104.
