This dynamic group of gifted young people have travelled extensively throughout the United States. They are a gifted with a wealth of talent which is used to magnify and glorify the name of the Lord.

School Health Centers To Host Candidates

Many of Oregon's 19 school-based health centers will hold an open house for policymakers from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Oct. 6. The purpose of the open house is to provide a first-hand view of how school-based health centers work and to demonstrate how the centers can help build healthy communities in Oregon.

School health centers provide student-oriented services including treatment of acute illness, sports physicals, immunizations, counseling and family planning information. They are Oregon's primary strategy for reducing high-risk behavior in teens, a major focus of the Oregon Benchmarks. Experience shows that school-based health centers are valuable in promoting health, reducing drug abuse, counseling violent or suicidal students and preventing teenage pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases.

The planning grant encourages states to expand school-based health centers to elementary and middle school children and requires communities to look for ways to develop new public/private partnerships and funding options.

Seminary Sets High Mark For Enrollment

More people are attending Western Evangelical Seminary than at any time in the institution's 47-year-history. Enrollment figures compiled on September 22 show 213 people enrolled, a 22 percent increase over 1993.

Greatest increase was in the master's degree program in Christian counseling psychology, which went from 85 students to 118. A total of 174 students are enrolled in the various master's degree programs, such as divinity, Christian education and theological studies (including Old Testament, New Testament and Christian history and thought).

The remaining 39 other people fall into specialized enrollment categories. Five are enrolled in a new one-year diploma program in urban ministries, leading to a master's degree. Sixteen people are taking part in a new Spanish-language program.

Director of Enrollment Todd McCollum said the previous high enrollment was 208 people in 1981, when the seminary was housed at its former campus in Jennings Lodge, southeast of Portland. The institution moved in 1992 to its Hampton Plaza campus at 12753 S.W. 68th Ave. in Tigard.

McCollum said the Tigard campus's convenient location near the intersection of several major highways has encouraged enrollment. "It's easier to go to," he said.

John Beebe Lecture: Integrity in Fairy Tales

There will be a workshop Working On Integrity following a lecture Friday, October 14, 7:30 p.m.

All of us desire to live our lives with integrity, but few of us know what that really means until we are tested by life to realize our moral limits and potential. John Beebe, M.D., a Jungian analyst, and an author and editor will lecture on the common theme in fairy tales of this testing and development of an individual's conception of integrity.

Saturday's workshop will focus on the exploration of what integrity consists of—how it may be recognized, personally located, and developed.

The lecture will be at 7:30 p.m. at Westminster Presbyterian Church, Great Hall, 1624 NE Hancock, Portland. Cost is $10. The workshop will be 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. at the Church. Cost is $60.

Drug Education Training For Church Educators Scheduled

"I began taking drugs when I was 8 years old. My older brother got me started," states a youth pastor at a Portland-area church.

Those statements reflect reality. Over half of sixth graders report pressure to drink beer, wine or liquor and one out of three boys and one out of five girls classify themselves as drinkers by age 13, according to the National Clearing House for Alcohol and Drug Information.

To address this problem at the local level, a training of teachers on the new "Well & Good" Alcohol, Tobacco & Other Drugs Education and Prevention Curriculum will be presented on Saturday, October 8, at 9 a.m., at Hughes Memorial United Methodist Church, 111 N.E. Failing Street in Portland.

Focusing on values, self-esteem, behaviors, and outside influences, the curriculum is adaptable to Sunday School settings or youth group activities. It can be taught as a weekly series or broken down into smaller components. It is designed to require minimal preparation time for teachers and include in-class activities and home assignments.

The material was written in collaboration with the State Office of Alcohol and Drug Programs by the Drug Education Program of Ecumenical Ministries of Oregon.

The registration fee of $10 includes training materials. Scholarships are available. Please call Joyce Adams, Asst. Director of the Drug Education Program at Ecumenical Ministries of Oregon, 221-1054, for more information.
