What Do I Get If I Win?

In addition to feeling like a winner, 50 students will receive scholarships to a week-long Summer Forestry Day Camp at the Magness Memorial Tree Farm in Wilsonville, which is run by the World Forestry Center (see description below).

The scholarship includes transportation, so all you have to do is show up at Dishman Community Center, where a bus will pick you up in the morning (at 9:00 AM) and drop you off in the afternoon (around 4:00 PM).

The day camp will be held from June 19-23. Snacks will be provided but you will have to provide your own lunch.

Winners will be contacted by Wednesday, April 19. Charles Jordan, Director of Portland Parks and Recreation, will present certificates to the winners at the Earth Day at Dishman Celebration on Saturday, April 22 at 10:00 AM. The Magness Memorial Tree Farm

The day camp is based on the internationally successful Project Learning Tree (PLT) environmental education program. Students will use cooperative learning and problem solving skills in a closely supervised, outdoor "field" setting to explore forest ecology and related environmental challenges. The tree farm is a 70 acre demonstration forest and outdoor education site located on Parrett Mountain between Wilsonville and Sherwood, Oregon. The site has a large natural area and nine separate management units, in addition to a small stream, antique logging equipment, and a 60' high historic fire tower.

The day camp program is managed by the Education Department of the world Forestry Center and features both museum and tree farm staff members, in addition to guest instructors and volunteers from local natural resource organizations.
