On Marriage
 BY L. RON HUBBARD

Communication is the root of marital success from which a strong union can grow, and non communication is the rock on which the ship will bash out her keel.

In the first place, men and women aren't too careful "on whom they up and marry". In the absence of any basic training about neurosis, psychosis, or how to judge a good cook or a good wage earner, that tricky, treacherous and not always easy-to-identify thing, called "love," is the sole guiding factor in the selection of mates. It is too much to expect of a society above the level of ants to be entirely practical about an institution as basically impractical as marriage. Thus, it is not amazing that the misselection of partners goes on with such abandon.

There are ways, however, not only to select a marriage partner, but also to guarantee the continuation of that marriage; and these ways are simple. They depend uniformly on communication.

There should be some parity of intellect and sanity between a husband and wife for them to have a successful marriage. In Western culture, it is expected that the women shall have some command of the humanities and sciences. It is easy to establish the educational background of a potential marriage partner; it is not so easy to gauge their capability regarding sex, family or children, or their sanity.

In the past, efforts were made to establish sanity with inkblots, square blocks and tests with marbles to find out if anybody had lost any. The resulting figures had to be personally interpreted with a crystal ball and then reinterpreted for application.

In Scientology, there is a test for sanity and comparative sanity which is so simple that anyone can apply it. What is the "communication lag" of the individual? When asked a question, how long does it take him to answer? When a remark is addressed to him, how long does it take for him to register and return?

The fast answer tells of the fast mind and the sane mind, providing the answer is sequitur; the slow answer tells of downscale (into a state of decreased awareness; into the lower level emotions, such as apathy, anger, etc.) Marital partners who have the same communication lag get along; where one partner is fast and one is slow, the situation will become unbearable to the fast partner and miserable to the slow one.

...The subject of marriage could not be covered in many chapters, but here is given the basic clue to a successful marriage -- Communicate!

Given Salvation Army's Harbor Light A Helping Hand
 With ladders and brushes, the Church of Scientology Volunteer Ministers marched into Harbor Light Mission over the weekend to "brighten up" some of the office areas with a fresh coat of paint. "The Church of Scientology supports those groups who really make a difference in the community," says Vicki Schere, Church Community Relations Director, "and Harbor Light has definitely made a difference in Portland."

According to Chaplain Nick Giesh, last year Harbor Light has gotten 120 homeless men back into the workforce as contributing members of society.

The Harbor Light's Meal program feeds 25 to 100 homeless people per day. Locally funded, the Salvation Army has 13 different programs in the Portland area that are dedicated to improving the quality of life for those in need.
