Frieda Murray Gets Senior Center Welcome

Frieda Murray

Area residents were recently introduced to Frieda H. Murray, an 84-year-old African American woman, at the MultiCultural Center in northeast Portland.

Murray enjoys participating in the center's trips, exercise classes and putting together its newsletter.

The friends, conversation and food at the center have allowed her to appreciate the goings-on here, staff members said.

Murray gave center staff a short history of her life:

"I was born in 1912 in Kansas where I lived with mother and dad who fought in the Civil War to free us from slavery. My father died in 1920. I lost mother at 18 years of age. Later I met my husband. We had 3 daughters and one son," she said. "In 1948, I was in the VanPort flood. I lost everything. I had but the children and our dog. I was awarded a certificate from the White House because of my work in the shipyards and no accidents. I worked at Albertina Kerr's home for children. I love the senior center and all who are in it. I love people and these people are my life. Praise the Lord."
