Reportedly, three people, a woman and two men had been at the address socializing. At one point during the evening, the men began to argue.

During that argument one of the men shot the other in the head with a

4th Take Daughters To Work

Girls say: "Vote for Me!" to adults: participation expected to grow

The nation is gearing up for the fourth Take Our Daughters to Work Day on Thursday, April 25, 1996, when million of girls between the ages of nine and 15 will surf the 'Net and make their own Home Pages, learn about semi-conductors, meet astronauts, sell insurance, and again visit thousands of workplaces across the country and around the world with parents, relatives, neighbors and other caring adults.

Take Our Daughters To Work Day was created in 1993 by the Ms. Foundation in response to disturbing research on adolescent girls, which showed that girls suffer a significant drop in self esteem during adolescence. The research revealed that as girls' bodies begin to change, they feel judged on their appearance -rather than their abilities -- and, as a result, they lower their expectations. The Day was designed as an intervention -- a time for adults to focus on girls' talents and potential, rather than their appearance, and to show them all the ways women participate in the work world.

What's New This Year? The Ms. Foundation has created four new elements for the program for 1996. First, a $60,000 scholarship sweepstakes for girls. Three girls, selected in a random drawing, will each receive $20,000 in savings bonds to be used for their continuing education. The school each winner attends will be awarded $1,500 to be applied to its girls' athletic program. The sweepstakes is open to any girl aged nine to 17. To receive and official sweepstakes entry form, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Take Our Daughters Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 397, Camden, NC 27921. Deadline: May 31, 1996.

The second new element is our theme for 1996: "Vote for Me!" This theme was created to encourage girls to stand up for themselves -- by saying "Vote for Me!" to the adults in their lives. By saying "Vote for Me," girls are reminding adults to give them a vote of confidence. And, in this election year, the theme reminds adults that girls can't vote -but adults can. "Vote for Me" urges adults to remember girls' concerns -- especially education, health, and violence prevention -- when they go to the polls in November. The third element: a WEB SITE: http:// www.ms.foundation.org. The fourth new element: a new survey by Seventeen magazine and the Ms. Foundation of 1,000 teenagers across the country, called "Teenagers Under Pressure." The survey documents the challenges boys and girls face -and how they are dealing with these

How Many people participate? According to Roper Starch Worldwide polls, 37 million adults said their company participated in Take Our Daughters to Work Day in 1995 -- up from 25 million adults in 1994. The Ms. Foundation estimates that approximately 5 million girls participated in 1995.

What's Happening On The Day? The following is Merely a sampling of what some companies and organizations round the country are planning. (For more details or stories, call 212-

Used Car Fruad Exposed

Attorney General Theodore R. Kulongoski announced that a used car business can no longer require that consumers purchase extended service contracts to qualify for financing. Named in an agreement, which admits no law violations, is Fred Burris, who owns and operates Sonny's Auto Sales in Portland.

The Department of Justice looked into Burris' business practices after it received a consumer complaint in December, 1995 that alleged representatives of Sonny's Auto Sales falsely told consumers that they must purchase extended service contracts in order to qualify for a loan.

"Consumers don't have to buy an extended service contract unless they want to," Kulongoski said. "Consumers should simply walk from any sales pitch which claims that purchase of an extended service contract is mandatory and then report it to my Financial Fraud section.'

Extended service contracts are routinely offered to new and used car buyers and may add hundreds of dollars to the transaction. Kulongoski urged consumers to study the extended service contract in detail before agreeing to purchase.

Burris will inform future customers that an extended service contract is not required as a condition of financing. Burris also will pay $2,500 to the Department of Justice for the use in consumer protection and education activities and $880 in restitution to the consumers who filed consumer complaints.

For more information about extended service contracts, arranging financing or purchasing previouslyowed cars, consumers may contact the Attorney General's consumer hotline at (503) 378-4320 or 229-

Portland Sixth Most Costly Housing

Housing prices have placed Portland among the top ten-least affordable housing markets in the nation says the National Association of Home Builder's Housing Opportunity Index. The indicator measures the proportion of homes sold in a specific market that a family earning the medial income in the area could afford. Differences in property taxes and insurance rates are also taken into consideration.

Portland's cost of living rate, the after-taxes cost for a midmanagement standard of living, is 107.7 percent or 7.7 percent above the nationwide average. The figures for housing were 122.8 percent above national average. Other considerations include 97.6 percent for grocery items, 109 percent for utilities, 109 percent for transportation and 123.8 percent for health

It is costlier to buy a house in Portland than it is in Salinas, Calif.; El Paso, Texas and Honolulu. Only San Francicso; Santa Curuz; Loredo, Texas; New York and Santa Rosa, Calif. are more expensive.
