Thomas Hagley Jr. Award

Vancouver Mayor Royce E. Pollard announced Tuesday, June 25 that Thomas Hagley, Jr. is the recipient of the 1996 General George C. Marshall Public Leadership Award.

A special award ceremony will take place at the Marshall House to honor Hagley on Thursday, July 11.

Hagley was nominated by Dr. James Parsley, Superintendent of Vancouver Public Schools. He is currently working as Assistant to the Superintendent, Community & Intergovernmental Relations for Vancouver Public Schools. He holds a Bachelor of Arts and History from Whitman College and is currently exploring doctoral programs to advance his career in educational leadership and public service.

The recipient must be 30 years of age or younger, have a four-year college degree, reside in Clark County and demonstrate leadership potential.

The Marshall Award was started in 1989 and recognizes a local individual's commitment to public service. It is presented in honor of the public service legacy of General George C. Marshall, U.S. Army Chief of Staff during World War II, Secretary of State under President Truman and 1953 Nobel Peace Prize Laureate. From 1936 to 1938 Marshall served as commander of Vancouver Barracks and lived in the house that now bears his name on Officers Row.

In support of Hagley, Dr. Parsley says, "I have known few young people with as much potential for community leadership as Tom." He adds, "Tom grew up in a home where community involvement was a family value." Hagley has devoted time to the Citizens' Committee for Good Schools and the Columbia River Regional Education Compact. He enjoys outdoor recreation in his spare time.

There were seven nominees for the award. They include Kristin Gottlieb, nominated by Janice Altman, American Business Women's Association; Robert Martin, nominated by Mark Brandon, Seafirst Bank; Jennifer Kampsula, nominated by Darcie Hatcher, American Cancer Society; Erik Runyan, nominated by Citizens for Progressive Leadership; Kellie Henderson, nominated by Joyce Kilpatrick, YWCA; and Kristine Frazier nominated by Dr. Twyla Barnes, Educational Service District #112.

Fourth Of July Boaters

On Thursday, July 4, boaters will be able to access the Marine Park boat launch only from Columbia Way at Who Song and Larry's Restaurant.

A checkpoint will be posted on Columbia Way near Who Song & Larry's Restaurant to admit vehicles with attached watercraft to proceed to Marine Park. Only vehicles towing watercraft will be allowed. There will be no pedestrian access. Roadway access to the City of Vancouver Marine Park boat launch will close at 4 p.m.

The only exit will be the Portco tunnel eastbound.

Access to Frontage Road at SR 14 and Grand Boulevard will be closed.

Columbia Shores Drive and Frontage Road will be used as the access roads for emergency vehicles.

A "no-wake" zone is in effect for the area around the Marine Park boat launch and Terminal one. A safety zone will be established around the fireworks barge, which will be anchored east of the I-5 Bridge. Boaters are cautioned to stay away from the barge. Boats are not allowed on the Washington beach from I-5 to Marine Park.

Law enforcement agencies will check boats for overloading, flotation devices, alcohol overuse and other violations.

For more information, call Lt. Janet Thiessen at 696-8165 or Lt. Roy Brown at 696-8126.

City Streamlines Departments

City Manager Verion Stoner recently announced some internal changes designed to enhance and streamline the way city government works.

The Office of Neighborhoods will move from the manager's office to the Department of Community Development, formerly Community Preservation and Development. This action recognizes the importance of neighborhoods in planning and developing the community.

The Public Information Division and Computer Technology Program in the manager's office will combine with CVTV (Clark Vancouver Television) to be called the Department of Information Services. This move will also involve redefining the relationship between CVTV and Clark County.

The changes result in the City Manager's office being responsible for budget, council support, annexation, economic development and overall city administration.

The changes take effect July 1. All divisions will remain in their current locations.

City Neighborhood Wins Grant

Vancouver's Southcliff Neighborhood is the recipient of a $1,000 grant to help install an irrigation system in its neighborhood park. The grant will be combined with money donated by the neighborhood raised through rummage sales. Americorps, a nine-member domestic Peace Corps, coordinated by the Vancouver Parks and Recreation Department, will install the system.

Grants are available to a recognized neighborhood association who's project benefits the entire neighborhood. Deadline is Oct 1.

For more information call Vancouver's Office of Neighborhoods at 696-8222.

Fourth of July May Pose Danger For Pets

The rockets red glare... the bombs bursting in air... they are all a part of celebrating our nation's birthday. But the noise and the lights that we enjoy on this holiday can be terrifying to our pets. Every year animal shelters are flooded with lost pets right after the 4th of July. In fact, more animals run away or are lost because of this holiday than any other time of the year. Pet owners need to take some basic precautions to protect their pets:

1. Keep your pets indoors all night. Many dogs will jump fences in an attempt to escape the noise.
2. If you are not at home to calm your pets, leave a radio on to provide soothing background sounds and to help drown out the sound of the fireworks.
3. Isolate your pets in a smaller room, preferable one with no windows, to help insulate them from what's going on outside. Dogs have been known to jump through living room windows, again to escape the noise.

4. Keep current identification on your pets at all times. Just in case your pet does get out, or lost, this is their best chance of being returned to you.

5. If your pet should become lost, begin looking for it immediately! Don't wait, thinking it may find its own way home. The fireworks will disorient and confuse him or her. And pets can travel a long distance in a short time so the sooner you begin to look, the better your chances are of finding your pet.

6. Call the Vancouver Humane Society. If your pet becomes lost, the Society will help you find your pet. Visit the shelter to look for your pet and to fill out a lost pet report. Or if you have found a wandering pet you can call and let us know where the pet is, or bring it to the shelter.

The Vancouver Humane Society is the largest animal shelter in southwest Washington, caring for more 7,000 animals last year. The Society is a non-profit organization dedicated to preventing cruelty to animals, providing care for homeless and distressed animals, and educating the public about proper animal care. The shelter is located at 2323 W 26th Street Extension. From I-5 head west on Fourth Plain Blvd. over the railroad overpass and follow Humane Society signs. For more information call (360) 693-4746.
