INTERNATIONAL PERFORMERS CONVERGE IN PORTLAND

Portland International Performance Festival performers: Ken Campbell, Anne Galjour, and Akira Matzui.

The 1997 Portland International Performance Festival features original and provocative performance from the outrageous to the sublime. Theater, film, dance, and music will rivet Portland audiences. Ken Campbell, hailed as Britain's comic genius, opens the Festival with Jamais Vu, a hilarious and irreverent guided tour. The narrative moves from an inadequately prepared alien to Saddam Hussein. As one critic stated "I don't think there is a more hilarious anarchic talent on the loose in British Theater." (The Times London).

Also featured is Anhe Galjour, award winning playwright and compelling performer in her one-woman tour de force, Hurricane. Galjour takes the audience on a journey to the richness and starkness of the Louisiana Bayou. Hurricane won, the 1996 William Glideman ward for outstanding new play.

Home Is Where the Art Is offers performance in the most warm and intimate setting - homes throughout Portland. The performers include musicians, poets, dancers, puppets, and storytellers.

Japanese dance, Costa Rican music and a Caribbean Festival are just a few of the myriad of other Festival events.

The Portland International Performance Festival is sponsored by the Portland State University School of Extended Studies and School of Fine & Performing Arts.

Deborah Henson-Conant

Comedian? Composer? Singer? Harpist? Storyteller? Deborah Henson-Conant is all of these. She "plays the pants off the harp and tells tall tales with the ease of a stand-up comic." (The Plain Dealer-Ohio) "then tightens the screws with solid music..." (Boston Phoenix)

Recently profiled on NPR "Weekend Edition-Saturday," CBS "Sunday Morning," and NBC's "Today" show, Henson-Conant has recorded 10 albums and tours throughout the U.S. and Europe. She is equally at home as a solo artist or as a featured guest with orchestras.

On tour last summer as the Boston Pops' soloist, she "set the crowd afire" (San Francisco Examiner) with her funk, blues, flamenco, bebop, Latin, classical, pop...and comedy.
