Final Countdown To Funding An IRA For 1997

It's two weeks and counting for anyone considering a contribution to a Traditional Individual Retirement Account (IRA) for the 1997 tax year. Taxpayers have until April 15 to contribute up to $2,000 to a Traditional IRA for tax year 1997. (Prior to 1997, such couples were limited to $2,250 annually.)

"In the midst of all the attention surrounding the enhancements to IRAs for 1998, it's important to not overlook the opportunity to take advantage of an IRA for 1997," said Judith McMichael of Fidelity Investments. "Contributing to an IRA offers a great way to build your retirement savings because any earnings grow tax-deferred and that helps your savings grow faster through the power of compounding. IRAs are a terrific way to supplement saving through employer-sponsored retirement plans." According to McMichael, an added incentive for single-income married couples is the enhancement effective in 1997 which allows non-wage-earning spouses to contribute up to $2,000 to an IRA, for a combined limit of $4,000 per couple.

Observing Vancouver

April 18 Is Earth Action Day

Pull ivy, build a bird house or beat back the blackberries during Earth Action Day on Saturday, April 18. Families are invited to take part in 21 Earth Action Day projects. Just a few hours of volunteer work will improve the environment throughout Vancouver.

To participate in one of the Earth Action Day projects, call the Columbian's Info Line at 699-6000 and enter extension 3636 to register for a particular project. Space is limited, so preregister by April 12.

To learn more, look for and ad listing all the projects in the March 29 and April 2 Columbian Newspaper. Fliers will also be inserted in the April 1 Battle Ground Reflector and are available at City of Vancouver and Clark County facilities.

Earth Action Day is coordinated by the City of Vancouver, C-Tran, Clark College, Clark County, Clark

Public Utilities, the Environmental Information Center and the Southwest Air Pollution Control Authority. Sponsors include AmeriCorps, Burgerville, Cascade Fire and Safety, Clark College Student Clubs, The Columbian, Jantzen Beach Home Depot, KVAN, The Reflector, Ronen Chiropractic Clinic, Vancouver Bicycle Club and various community groups.

Paul G. Allen Charitable Foundation Gift Propels YMCA Past 60% Mark

The Clark County YMCA fund raising campaign received an enormous boost with an $800,000 gift from the Paul G. Allen Charitable Foundation. "This gift will solidify our campaign effort" remarked Bruce Hagensen spokesperson for the Clark County campaign leadership team. "We are absolutely thrilled with this gift. It not only shows the community how generous Paul Allen is, but it gives our fund raising effort some very strong momentum."

The Allen gift is the largest in the campaign and will be directed towards the construction of a large multi-use gymnasium. The gym will be filled with fun, exciting, and challenging activities. "Not only will young people be able to play the traditional sports such as basketball, volleyball, and soccer, but they will be able to rock climb, roller blade, skate board, and even play laser tag," said Wayne Clemetson Executive Director for the Clark County YMCA. "Just as Paul Allen is creating computer products for the future, the YMCA is creating a facility for the future."

The ability of the YMCA to build the new facility in Vancouver is the result of a collaboration between the YMCA of Columbia-Willamette, the Vancouver Housing Authority and Cobalt Enterprise. The VHA gave the YMCA 2.2 acres of land which is next to the housing project they will be building. Cobalt properties and Paul Christianson are the developers.

3 Citizens To Attend National Neighborhood Conference

Three Vancouver citizens will join the city's neighborhood staff at the 1998 Neighborhoods USA conference in May. Two citizens are chosen annually to attend the National NUSA Conference. However, this year three neighborhood representatives will attend because the conference will be held nearby in Portland.

Edwin H. Wolfe, from the Hough Neighborhood; Shareefah A. Abdullah, from the North Garrison Heights Neighborhood; and Patricia Cooley from the Vancouver Heights Neighborhood were selected to attend. Workshops at the conference will focus on such issues as: Safe Neighborhoods, Just Starting a Neighborhood, Planning for Livable Neighborhoods, Urban Forestry, Environmental Partnerships and Historic Preservation.

In addition, these neighborhood representatives have agreed to assist city staff in planning the Ninth Annual Vancouver Neighborhoods Conference on Sept. 26 at Bagley Center.
