Hornbuckle & Delay Perform At Historic Elsinore Theatre

The Linda Hornbuckle and Paul deLay Bands perform a double bill of the blues on Saturday, May 2 at 7pm at The Historic Elsinore Theatre.

Soul Diva Linda Hornbuckle, a Portland native, got her musical start at age 6 at the Grace & Truth Pentecostal Church. Over the years, she has developed a style of singing that incorporates her Gospel background with elements of soul and funk.

Hornbuckle has opened for numerous groups such as The Temptations, The Four Tops and The Beach Boys and she has also performed with Gino Vanelli, Curtis Salgado, Paul deLay and others. She is currently launching her solo career with her self-titled CD and her acclaimed single "There Was a Time."

Paul deLay is credited as a key instigator of the Pacific Northwest area's blues community and has worked his share of one-night gigs in hundreds of venues for more than 25 years. Ranked among the finest blues harmonica players alive, deLay and his ensemble band have opened for such greats as B.B. King. The Linda Hornbuckle and Paul deLay Bands will each perform a 75 minute set in one dynamic concert on Saturday, May 27 at 7pm. The theatre will open at 6 pm for a social hour.

Tickets cost $12.50 to $19.00 and are available by calling Mid-Valley Arts Council FASTIXX at 370-7469 or Fred Meyer FASTIXX at 1-800-992-8499.

Roger Hodgson Concert Review

BY ELANA KESTREL

About a decade and a half ago, Roger Hodgson left a successful run as a member of the hit rock group Supertramp and created two solo albums. He then retreated from the public eye to recover from creative burnout and to raise his family. This year's "Solotramp" tour of America marked the artist's excellent re-entry into the music scene.

Roger Hodgson's performance at Portland's Avalon Theater showed that if anything, the absence gave much new strength to his gentle, yet powerful musical genius. Hodgson sings with a deep sense of humanity, heart and feeling.

Playing alone on stage, Hodgson faced the vulnerable task of playing his music without the benefit of his former multi-piece band to back him.

However, the creative Hodgson magic overcame all obstacles that night. By the middle of the concert, both artist and fan had become one in song as the Avalon audience joined to provide the missing backing vocals to Supertramp classics such as "Dreamer" and "Hide In Your Shell". He also sang new solo works from his new album "Rites of Passage" to great acclaim.

Overall this concert was a wonderful evening of profound and delightful moments, with bright hopes on the horizon for this artist's renewed future.
