Over 50 Children at the Dishman Community Center Presented Their Mothers With a Touching Gift

There is a strong urge to change the violence that has taken hold of North Portland in recent years. The gang violence, murders, robberies, burglaries and abuse of illegal drugs has taken its toll on the community. But the different local community organizations of Portland are coming together to bring needed change in the area.

In contrast to the rising crime of drug related violence which claims the lives of inner-city youngsters each year in Northeast and North Portland-Northeast and North Portland mothers were heartened on May 9th by the special, Mother's Day gifts they received from their children.

Rev. Foster of St. Paul Church of God & Christ opened the ceremony with a prayer. Barbara Roland the spokesperson for the Drug-Free Marshals gave the opening address. Then Helen Sloan of Mother's Against Gang Violence gave her story of having lost a son to the violence and the problems of drugs in all of Portland. Next, was Frederick woods of Positive Youth Development who spoke of the problems of drugs and what it does to the lives of those struggling with drug abuse.

The special Mother's Day event was organized by the Church of Scientology of Portland's Drug-Free Marshals program, in coordination with Positive Youth Development and Mother's Against Gang Violence.

Over 50 children took the seven-point Drug Free Marshal's pledge, received their official Drug Free Marshal's badges. The children then presented their moms with long-stemmed red roses and their promise to lead drug free lives. Attached to each rose was a Mother's Day card which read:

"This Mother's Day you are getting two gifts from me. The first is this lovely flower and the second is my solemn pledge to live a life free of drugs. Today I became a Drug-Free Marshal which means I promise to be drug free and help make my community drug free too. Happy Mother's Day."

Barbara Roland, a mother of two and spokesperson for the Church's Drug-Free Marshal program, commented, "A child's pledge to stay away from drugs is the best Mother's Day present I can ever imagine receiving. It really means a lot and will certainly brighten Mother's Day for these mothers and their children."

The Church of Scientology runs the Drug-Free Marshals program in cooperation with law enforcement agencies, local churches, schools and community organizations. to date, tens of thousands of children in cities throughout the US have taken the anti-drug pledge and have been sworn-in as Drug-Free Marshals.

For more information on the Drug-Free Marshals program call Barbara Roland at 221-4504. For information on Positive Youth Development call Rita Jamison at 920-1360.
