NEW MAX

IS THROUGHOUT THE WESTSIDE

between westside neighborhoods, making it even easier to get around on Tri-Met.

Now with comfy trains and buses.

If you haven't been aboard Tri-Met's MAX or buses lately, leave any preconceptions at the door. Our trains and buses are continually being updated and are more comfortable than ever. Many now feature easy, curb-level boarding, air-conditioning and oversized windows, all the better to see those traffic jams you'll be avoiding. And as you travel the Westside MAX line, be sure to check out the artwork at each station and along the way. We've also improved security by installing cameras at MAX stations, inside every MAX car and in many buses. All the better to keep your journey safe.

Look. New transit centers.

We've added three new transit centers on the westside: Willow Creek, Sunset, and Hillsboro. Willow Creek and Sunset have plenty of parking, as do seven other Westside MAX stations. So for all of you who'd prefer to Park & Ride, go ahead, have a field day. But, bid farewell to the Cedar Hills Transit Center and Park & Ride, for they are closing.

Relieves congestion, pollution and stress.

When you're riding on MAX or the bus, your car is not on the road taking up space. It's also not spewing exhaust or leaking oil. And, you're not clutching your steering wheel in a white-knuckle grip, stressed to the teeth, late for work, stuck in yet another traffic jam. Instead, you're relaxed, reading a book, listening to tapes or thinking something profound about love, life or what you ate for lunch.

How we get there matters.
