RAMADAN

By DEREK RASHEED

Allah (God) revealed the Qur'an, a book for mankind offering clear proofs of divine guidance with a criterion for right and wrong.

Muslims fast during the month of Ramadan. It is one of the five pillars of Islam and is an obligation of every Muslim to practice unless they are ill or on a journey. If any day of the month that the practice missed, they can make it up by feeding the hungry or by prolonging their fast.

Fasting is a source of self-restraint, piety and receiving God Consciousness. It was prescribed by Allah (God) for the Prophets before Prophet Muhammad (pbuh). In the Qur'an verses, Allah has pointed out its goal or purpose: "Fasting is a shield from the Hell-fire like one of your shields used in fighting."

Ramadan also comes as an intercessor on the Day of Judgement. The Prophet (pbuh) has said, "the fast and the Qur'an shall come as intercessors on the Day of Resurrection." The person fasting shall say, 'O Lord, I prevented him from his food and drink during the day, so let me intercede for him.' The Qur'an says, 'I kept him from sleep during the night, so let me intercede for him.' Then they will be allowed to intercede." It is an act that demonstrates one's sincerity to Allah. Only Allah (God) is aware if a person truly fasted or not. No one can know if he secretly broke his fast. Therefore, Allah has a special reward for those who fast.

Allah has said, "He leaves his food, drink and desires because of me. Fasting is for my sake and I shall reward it and every good deed shall be rewarded ten fold." By Allah's grace and mercy, if a person fasts the month of Ramadan with faith in Allah and hoping for its reward, Allah will forgive all of his previous minor sins.

The purpose of fasting is to release the spirit of man from the clutches of desire and moderation prevailed in his carnal self. And through it, he can realize the goal of purification and everlasting felicity. It is aimed at curbing the intensity of desire and lust by means of hunger and thirst to induce him to realize how many were there in the world like him who had to go even without a small quantity of food - at making it difficult for the Devil to deceive him and at restraining his organs from turning towards things in which there was the loss of both worlds. Fasting, thus, is the bridle of the God-fearing, the shield of the crusaders and the discipline of the virtuous.

Ramadan starts on the sighting of the new moon and runs thirty days after the first ten days of seeking Allah (God) and Mercy, the second ten days of our seeking Allah (God) for forgiveness and the last ten days of our seeking freedom from the Hell fire in the hereafter.

Ramadan brings spiritual uplifting to its observer. It has been reported that Allah's Messenger (pbuh) has said, "When Ramadan begins, the gates of Paradise are open, the gates of Hell are locked and devils are chained." Fasting in Islam involves abstinence from the three primal physical needs of human beings - food, drink and sexual intercourse from dawn (approximately 1 1/2 hours before sunrise to sunset) with the intention of fasting. There are however, no restrictions regarding these physical needs during the night time.

May Allah bless all of you with success in completing this holy month.
